Viet Battles Rage Over the Weekend

SAIGON (AP) — The Communist command intensified the Vietnam war over the weekend and for the first time introduced Russian long-range antiaircraft guns to its beefed up air defenses just above the demilitarized zone.

Allied forces reported killing more than 1,000 enemy troops in a weekend of savage fighting from the outskirts of Saigon to the demilitarized zone.

In keeping with Hanoi's proclaimed "fight and talk" policy, the Communist command's push came as North Vietnamese and American negotiators prepared for their fifth meeting today in the Paris cease-fire talks.

GI Casualities

American casualties were reported as 54 killed and 192 wounded in the series of battles. South Vietnamese losses were termed light.

Sharp fighting continued on three sides of Saigon today. The Viet Cong was believed moving 500 to 1,000 troops toward the capital.

The heaviest fighting over the weekend came in the northern sector, where North Vietnamese troops renewed their pressure on the U.S. Marine headquarters at Dong Ha, and in the central highlands, where a massive campaign may be shaping up.

U.S. spokesman said superior allied firepower led to enemy defeats in most of the clashes, but American troops appeared to have been set back in at least two places.

About 800 North Vietnamese overran a section of the perimeter and four bunkers at a U.S. 4th Infantry Division patrol and artillery base 11 miles west of Dak To in the central highlands. In more than seven hours of fighting, 14 U.S. infantrymen were killed and 56 wounded. U.S. fighter-bombers joined the battle and the enemy retreated in thick fog.

About 400 Viet Cong troops attacking with grenades, mortars and small arms killed five infantrymen of a U.S. 25th Division unit in night defensive positions on the northwestern outskirts of Saigon, six miles from the center of the city. The enemy withdrew early today.

Heavy Fighting

As in the first two weeks of May, heavy fighting raged again around Dong Ha, headquarters of the U.S. 3rd Marine Division, 11 miles below the demilitarized zone.

South Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing 99 enemy soldiers Sunday on the same battleground where government troops claimed 152 killed the previous day. Government losses in Sunday's battle were reported as one killed and one wounded, and casualties Saturday also were reported light.

U.S. Marines of the 4th Regiment ran into North Vietnamese troops in bunkers seven miles northeast of Dong Ha Saturday and reported killing 103 of them in a 14-hour fight. Aerial observers estimated that another 75 to 100 enemy soldiers, presumably back-up troops, were killed on the periphery of the action by air strikes and artillery. Sixteen Americans were killed and 33 wounded.

Some of the Marines' support came from a U.S. Navy 7th Fleet ship offshore in the South China Sea.

N. Viet Refrain the Same

PARIS (UPI) —North Vietnam told the United States again today it must halt bombing and "all other acts of war" against the North if it wants Vietnam peace talks. The United States asked Hanoi to quit distorting facts and get down to talks aimed at a "just and honorable peace."

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Hanoi's chief envoy Xuan Thuy held their fifth and longest session. It lasted four hours and 10 minutes. It brought no sign of a breakthrough in their stalemate, but they agreed to try again on Friday.

As in the past four sessions this one was marked by some blunt talk on both sides. At one point Thuy looked directly at Harriman and asked:

"I am waiting, gentlemen, for a reply to this question. When will the United States cease unconditionally its bombing and all other acts of war on the whole territory of the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam, in order to allow the discussions to proceed then to other questions of interest to the two countries?"

Thuy reiterated earlier charges of alleged American "perfidy" for refusing to discuss a bombing halt and raising other questions. Harriman flatly rejected Thuy's assertion the United States had agreed to come here merely to discuss a bombing halt.

Harriman said the talks were being held on the basis of President Johnson's March 31 speech announcing limitation of bombing of the north.

"We reject the suggestion now being urged by you that the only reason for our meetings is to give the hour and date of the cessation of bombing," Harriman said. "This suggestion falls by its own weight, because if that were the reason, no meeting would have been necessary."

Harriman criticized what he called Thuy's wide variety of unfounded charges and accusations and described Thuy's claims of alleged Viet Cong successes as "not only grossly wrong but sheer fantasy."

U.S. officials said Harriman has been working on a "new approach" during the four-day recess since his last meeting with Thuy Wednesday. Its aim was to try to get the discussions off dead-center.

However, U.S. sources conceded they were not optimistic that the Communists would budge.

What the "new approach" would be was not disclosed. However, indications were that it would include a first serious attempt to get Thuy into secret negotiations, in which the U.S. sees the only real hope of a breakthrough.

Harriman reportedly also will make another effort to get Thuy to admit the presence of 85,000 North Vietnamese troops in the south. So far, Thuy refused to do so.

American officials said the United States is determined to get Hanoi to cut down the rate of infiltration of troops and supplies into the south in exchange for the complete bombing halt demanded by the Communists. They said it obviously will be impossible to get any such pledge unless and until Hanoi admits first of all that it has troops in the south.

DeGaulle and Unions Reach Accord

BY STEPHENS BROENING

PARIS (AP) — French labor, management and the government reached an agreement today to end the nation's paralyzing general strike. Labor leaders hurried off to the strike-bound factories to determine whether the workers would approve or reject it.

None of the union leaders would predict whether the 10 million striking workers would accept the pact and end the giant defiance of President Charles de Gaulle's government. But Georges Seguy, secretary general of the Communist-led General Confederation of Workers, said the decisions should be made "in a short time."

Partial Success

Seguy said the unions had achieved only partial success in the two nights of negotiating sessions, which lasted a total of 27 hours.

"We have arrived at an ensemble of conclusions which one can say constitutes an agreement," Premier Georges Pompidou told newsmen as the decisive 14-hour session ended at 7:45 a.m.

If the settlement is ratified by the workers, its cost may force De Gaulle to curtail or even abandon such expensive items as his nuclear strike force and large-scale aid to developing countries. He may also have to dig deep into France's hoard of gold which he has been using to put pressure on the dollar and the British pound.

Although the labor front was looking up, Pompidou was plagued with the possibility of more trouble on the second front of France's crisis, the student rebellion.

The National Students' Union called a 24-hour demonstration to begin today against alleged police provocations which it claimed were responsible for the bloody rioting in Paris Thursday and Friday nights.

Refuse Pledge

The Interior Ministry gave the students permission for a street march followed by a meeting at a stadium. Leaders of the students' union pledged that the demonstration would be nonviolent, but radical groups who have been talking revolution refused to join in the pledge.

The premier's tactic has been to give priority to the workers' demands since the general strike is having the more serious effect on the nation's economy and its life.

Presumably the government now will turn to the students' demands for sweeping reform of the antiquated university system. Pompidou has already promised a thorough shakeup and agreed to most of the students' original demands, but they have continued their strike and occupation of their universities, holding marathon discussion sessions at which they argue about how to go about revolutionizing French society.

The Syndicate of University Teachers announced its support for the new student demonstration. But the Communist party again turned their back on the young rebels, telling its followers to stay away because "new provocations" might hamper achievement of the workers' aims.

The agreement worked out with the labor leaders included:

1. An increase in the minimum hourly wages from 2.2 francs to 3 francs an hour, or from 44 to 60 cents. This will affect 450,000 workers.

2. An across the board wage hike for industrial workers of 7 per cent on June 1 and another 3 per cent on Oct. 1. The unions reportedly asked for 21 per cent.

3. Reduction of the work week from 46-47 hours to 40 without loss in pay. A compromise was reached on the timetable.

4. Management agreed to examine the union demand for lowering of the retirement age from 65 to 60 for men and 55 for women.

5. The unions also apparently won their demands for greater freedom for union activities in the shops.

6. Workers will be advanced 50 per cent of the wages lost during the strike but it must be repaid by the end of the year. The unions had demanded that the strikers be paid for the time lost.

7. Pompidou agreed that the National Assembly would reopen the question of social security benefits lowered in 1967. He said the government could not repeal the law since this was a power of the legislature.

8. The union demand for a tight cost of living clause was postponed until next March.

That Oregon Primary--- Big Test for Gene and RFK

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy courted the undecided voter in Oregon today while Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy claimed "every sign" now points to a hefty vote in his column in Tuesday's Democratic presidential primary.

And Republican Richard M. Nixon said supporters of two absent GOP rivals, Govs. Ronald Reagan of California and Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, are working in tandem in an effort to stop his drive for the White House nomination.

Sees 55 Per Cent

The former vice president said he does not think that effort will succeed, and forecast he will get 55 per cent of the GOP vote Tuesday.

Kennedy and his top lieutenants believe a substantial bloc of Oregon Democrats are still undecided in the final hours of a hectic campaign, and they are concerned because in past outings, McCarthy appeared to have scored well with late-deciding voters.

A McCarthy victory would be rated an upset.

But the Minnesota senator said the reports he received were encouraging. "Every sign I have up to now indicates that I will do very well in this state," he said.

TV Campaign

While the candidates traveled, their organizations waged heavy, last-minute television campaigns, concentrating on Portland stations to reach a metropolitan area which accounts for more than half the Democratic registration.

One key question on the minds of the Democratic campaigners: How big a share of the vote will President Johnson capture from people who want Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to become the nominee?

Both the Kennedy and McCarthy camps indicated their surveys of voter opinion pointed to a tight race. Kennedy has won two past tests from McCarthy, the most recent on May 14 in Nebraska, where he opened a 20 per cent gap over his rival from Minnesota.

Nixon climaxed his campaign Sunday night with a 90-minute telecast on a statewide hookup. He answered questions telephoned by listeners—and one of them asked about his past defeats, in the 1960 presidential race and in a gubernatorial bid in California two years later.

"Old politicians seldom die," Nixon said. "They never fade away. Yes, I have suffered defeats. I think I'm a stronger man and I would hope a better qualified man by having gone through the fire of defeats."

Rocky Write-In

But Nixon said he doesn't intend to have it happen again.

Television and published advertisements were the major weapons of the campaigns waged for Reagan—who is on the Oregon ballot—and Rockefeller—who is not. The forces of the New York governor were seeking write-in votes.

President Johnson stepped out of the presidential campaign nine days after the Oregon ballot was closed, so he is listed on it, and Humphrey is listed on the vice presidential line.

Leaders of organized labor have been waging a telephone campaign to promote votes for Johnson in an effort to help Humphrey.

Oregon's primary will deliver 35 nominating votes to the Democratic winner, 18 to the Republican. The primary binds the delegations on the first two ballots, until released, or until its candidate fails to get at least 35 per cent of the convention vote.

Crossover voting is not permitted.

Meanwhile, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey emerged the winner while New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy came out the big loser in the battle for Vermont's 22 National Democratic Convention delegates.

Kennedy backers actually suffered a double blow— first losing out in a bid for an "all or nothing" method of selecting delegates, then gaining only seven seats in the final balloting.

Humphrey led the way with 10 delegates, while Minn. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, picked up the other five.

What in the World!

March Winds in May

Heavy winds and plunging temperatures made the last weekend in May more like the end of March. The city engineer's thermometer recorded a 38 degree low which set records for this date. Heavy winds Sunday downed trees on Hurley Mountain Road and Sawkill Road at Route 209. A few isolated power interruptions were reported in the wake of gusty blow.

Still a Mystery

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The cause of the crash of a Soviet bomber which buzzed a U.S. aircraft carrier in the Norwegian Sea remained a puzzle today.

The Soviet plane, a TU16 Badger, went down in flames Saturday moments after making a fourth low-level pass over the carrier Essex. Parts of the bodies of three men from the plane, which normally carries a crew of seven, were found.

In Washington, Defense Department officials said that U.S. forces "in no way interfered with, hampered or threatened the Soviet aircraft at any time or in any way prior to the crash."

Maine Tragedy

WELLS BEACH, Maine (UPI)—Eight persons, five of them children, drowned Sunday when an 18-foot boat capsized two miles off Wells Beach in the Atlantic Ocean.

One man survived.

The bodies of four children and three adults were recovered. The search continued for the fifth child.

The survivor was identified as Arthur Sabageau of Springfield, Mass.

The Coast Guard said the boat capsized in heavy seas near Fisherman's Rock. Wells Beach is in southern Maine on the coast.

The accident triggered a massive search by planes, helicopters and surface vessels.

Crashes at Homecoming

SANTA PAULA, Calif. (AP)—Within sight of home after a 9,000-mile flight from Europe, Mira Slovak's sailplane crashed while a big welcome waited. He was gravely injured.

Two thousand persons and a victory barbecue were ready at Santa Paula Municipal Airport Sunday to welcome the adventurous 38-year-old glider pilot back from his long flight across the Atlantic and North America.

The big-winged red and white glider, powered by a tin German engine, settled in over the east runway and touche down out of sight. Seconds later came word the "Spirit c Santa Paula" had crashed into a 20-foot drainage ditch b low a bluff.

Dr. Ernest Carlson said the former Czechoslovakian air force pilot suffered four fractured vertebrae, broken ribs, internal injuries and concussion. He was in Santa Paula Community Hospital.

3 Days in Woods-- A Happy Ending

By ALBERT CAWEIN

A 25-year-old upstate woman, who said she was lost for three days in the woodlands between Fleischmanns and Phoenicia walked out of the woods on Route 28 late Sunday night and was subsequently met by an Ulster County Sheriff's Department patrol car.

Deputy Donald Van Aken said the woman, Martha Emily Olzdstrom of 143 Cook Avenue, Jamestown was dishevelled, weak and tired from her harrowing experience in which she spent two nights in the dense woodlands in Ulster County. She was taken to Kingston Hospital where she was reported in fair condition this morning.

She told Deputy Van Aken that she had stopped on the road near Fleischmanns in Delaware County to have dinner and took a short walk in the woods when she became lost. The young woman said when she became tired she propped herself against a tree and fell asleep. She slept in the woods two nights.

Seek Car

She could not remember where she parked her 1963 white Volkswagen with license CH 4251. Police authorities in the mountain area were still seeking the parked car today.

It was estimated that the woman may have walked in excess of 20 to 25 miles to reach the point where she came out on the highway. The distance along Route 28 from Fleischmanns to Phoenicia is about 18 miles. Deputies said she came out near Woodland Valley Road.

Deputy Van Aken said the young woman was partially in shock when he discovered her standing on the highway. He took her to the Woodland Valley Inn where she had three glasses of milk, two glasses of water, a hamburger and a cup of coffee.

More Data

After this she was able to give additional information. She told the deputy that she was a typist in Jamestown and was now on vacation. She had been staying at a motel at Highmount and checked out Friday morning. She claimed she stopped at a store in a town she believes to be Fleischmanns where she purchased a magazine and a sandwich.

Miss Olzdstrom was a bit hazy as to her direction from there. She parked her car along the road and walked into the woods with her sandwich and magazine. She remembers losing her glasses, a blanket and a pair of loafers. She was wearing boots when she was found.

Deputy James Filesky assisted in the investigation.

In her three-day trek she probably crossed several state marked trails to reach the point of exit from the woods. Woodland Valley, Fox Hollow and Belleayre trails run north and south between Fleischmanns and Phoenicia.

The exact point of entry will not be known until the woman's car is found.

SANTA PAULA, Calif. (AP)—Within sight of home after a 9,000-mile flight from Europe, Mira Slovak's sailplane crashed while a big welcome waited. He was gravely injured.

Two thousand persons and a victory barbecue were ready at Santa Paula Municipal Airport Sunday to welcome the adventurous 38-year-old glider pilot back from his long flight across the Atlantic and North America.

The big-winged red and white glider, powered by a tin German engine, settled in over the east runway and touche down out of sight. Seconds later came word the "Spirit c Santa Paula" had crashed into a 20-foot drainage ditch b low a bluff.

Dr. Ernest Carlson said the former Czechoslovakian air force pilot suffered four fractured vertebrae, broken ribs, internal injuries and concussion. He was in Santa Paula Community Hospital.

3 Days in Woods-- A Happy Ending

By ALBERT CAWEIN

A 25-year-old upstate woman, who said she was lost for three days in the woodlands between Fleischmanns and Phoenicia walked out of the woods on Route 28 late Sunday night and was subsequently met by an Ulster County Sheriff's Department patrol car.

Deputy Donald Van Aken said the woman, Martha Emily Olzdstrom of 143 Cook Avenue, Jamestown was dishevelled, weak and tired from her harrowing experience in which she spent two nights in the dense woodlands in Ulster County. She was taken to Kingston Hospital where she was reported in fair condition this morning.

She told Deputy Van Aken that she had stopped on the road near Fleischmanns in Delaware County to have dinner and took a short walk in the woods when she became lost. The young woman said when she became tired she propped herself against a tree and fell asleep. She slept in the woods two nights.

Seek Car

She could not remember where she parked her 1963 white Volkswagen with license CH 4251. Police authorities in the mountain area were still seeking the parked car today.

It was estimated that the woman may have walked in excess of 20 to 25 miles to reach the point where she came out on the highway. The distance along Route 28 from Fleischmanns to Phoenicia is about 18 miles. Deputies said she came out near Woodland Valley Road.

Deputy Van Aken said the young woman was partially in shock when he discovered her standing on the highway. He took her to the Woodland Valley Inn where she had three glasses of milk, two glasses of water, a hamburger and a cup of coffee.

More Data

After this she was able to give additional information. She told the deputy that she was a typist in Jamestown and was now on vacation. She had been staying at a motel at Highmount and checked out Friday morning. She claimed she stopped at a store in a town she believes to be Fleischmanns where she purchased a magazine and a sandwich.

Miss Olzdstrom was a bit hazy as to her direction from there. She parked her car along the road and walked into the woods with her sandwich and magazine. She remembers losing her glasses, a blanket and a pair of loafers. She was wearing boots when she was found.

Deputy James Filesky assisted in the investigation.

In her three-day trek she probably crossed several state marked trails to reach the point of exit from the woods. Woodland Valley, Fox Hollow and Belleayre trails run north and south between Fleischmanns and Phoenicia.

The exact point of entry will not be known until the woman's car is found.

Mammoth Bill-Handling Now Task For Rockefeller as Legislature Quits

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller today faced a major homefront task — disposing of more than a thousand bills dumped on his desk by the 1968 legislature before it left town last Saturday.

Rockefeller's office said the Republican governor would tackle the bill - handling job when he returns from the presidential campaign trail later this week. An estimated 1,000 to 1,200 bills await action.

The signal for the start of the so-called 30-day bill-signing period came last Saturday night. It was the fall of the Assembly gavel at 9:59 p.m. The Senate had adjourned 90 minutes earlier.

In the final hectic hours, the adjournment rush produced these developments:

— The Assembly debated for more than five hours before ratifying a Senate-approved measure for comparatively mild plan to decentralize New York City's troubled school system. The Assembly vote was 93 - 53. Opponents included those who want no decentralization at all and those who view the compromise plan as too weak.

— The Assembly completed legislative action on the $497 - million supplemental budget — a program designed to cover items not anticipated when the main budget was passed. The net effect was to lift state spending slightly above the $5.4-billion level.

—Both houses approved four of the five revenue bills sought by New York Mayor John V. Lindsay to help finance his city budget of around $6-billion.

— The Senate and Assembly swiftly approved a measure that would grant pay raises of up to $2,500 a year for the seven judges of the Court of Appeals, the state's highest tribunal, the 14 judges of the Court of Claims, and for 199 state Supreme Court judges. The $2,100 raises for Supreme Court judges also would apply to the 50 new Supreme Court judgeships created during the adjournment drive.

—The Senate voted final legislative approval for a bill that would raise maximum weekly payments to injured workers from $60 to $70 under the Workmen's Compensation Program. Similar increases were voted earlier last week for workers sidelined by unemployment or illness.

—Both houses completed action on proposed constitutional amendments that would continue the state charter's edict to keep the state's forest preserve "Forever Wild."

— The Assembly passed and sent to the governor a bill that would permit employes of non - profit institutions and agencies, such as private colleges, to organize into unions and to bargain collectively. An estimated [illegible],000 workers would be affected.

Rockefeller extended a qualified "well done" to the 1968 legislature, minutes after it adjourned.

His office here issued a statement in which the chief executive said he was "pleased with the number of important measures of my program enacted by the legislature."

His office withdrew, however, his earlier statement in which he cited the passage of a New York City school decentralization plan as one of the major accomplishments of the session.

The amended version omitted any reference to the decentralization proposal.

However, Capitol sources did not read the withdrawal of the first statement as a sign that the governor might reject the plan.

Rockefeller placed special emphasis on enactment of his plan to create a superagency — The State Urban Development Corporation—to help root out urban decay.

As for the legislature's top leaders, their evaluation was predictably favorable.

Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia, who is leaving the legislature for a federal judgeship after four years as speaker and 23 as a lawmaker, said he thought the session had been "very good...productive."

But he voiced deep regret over the legislature's $300 million cutback in the state medical assistance program. "We ruined a program with a bright future," Travia told newsmen sadly Sunday.

Latin Cowhand Has New Heart

By JOHN VIRTUE

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI)— A heart taken from an unidentified accident victim kept the "midnight tea" of death today from the bedside of a young cowboy from Brazil's wild Mato Grasso state.

Joao Ferreira da Cunha became the worlds 17th and Latin Americas first heart transplant patient Sunday. The stocky 23-year-old cowhand, apparently doomed by a tropical disease that had attacked his heart, received the heart of a young man who had been run down by a car on the outskirts of this big industrial city.

The donor carried no identification. His only possession was a pack of cigarettes.

Doctors said Ferreira da Cunha was "totally lucid and completely conscious" after completion of the 5½ hours of surgery. They said he talked so much they had to tell him to be quiet.

In Richmond, Va., doctors reported today that the world's 16th transplant recipient, who received a new heart Saturday, was in satisfactory condition. Hospital authorities refused to identify him but there were reports he is Joseph G. Klett, 54, Orange, Va.

The Brazilian recipient entered the hospital March 6 suffering from Chagas disease, a tropical ailment transmitted by a bug. The disease attacks the heart and slowly kills its victims and Ferreira da Cunha had resigned himself to death.

"They're pleasing me too much," Ferreira da Cunha had said of his treatment at the hospital. "I think today's the day for the midnight tea."

In the slang of Brazil, "midnight tea" means death.

Ferreira da Cunha agreed when doctors proposed the transplant operation. He signed his name to the authorization laboriously because he can barely write. The cowboy of mixed Portuguese and Indian blood was the youngest person to receive a transplanted heart.

Dr. Euryclides de Jesue Zerbini, 56, headed the transplant team at the charity hospital, Brazil's largest. The Brazilian congress has not yet passed legislation permitting the use of organs of patients whose next of kin cannot be located, but the medical team decided to go ahead anyway.

The donor was described as a mulatto, about 20 years old. His kidneys were transplanted into a young woman, who also was reported doing well.

Hospital spokesmen said four other patients were awaiting transplants.

SON FOR PRINCESS — Denmark's Crown Princess Margrethe gave birth to a nine-pound, five-ounce son about midnight (Denmark time) the official news agency in Copenhagen reported. Margrethe, eldest of three daughters of King Frederik and Queen Ingrid, was married last June 10 to French diplomat Count Henri de Laborde de Monpesat, who became Prince Henrik of Denmark, following the couple's marriage. Margrethe is the sister of Queen Anne-Marie of Greece and Princess Benedikte, who wed a Swedish-German landowner in Copenhagen last Feb. 3.

Arm Pains

Thomas L. Nelson, 56, of New Paltz, complained of pains of his arm after his car was in collision at 12:15 a.m. today with an unlighted vehicle parked on the pavement of Route 32 in the Town of New Paltz, according to Highland State Police. Dudley Hudson, of New Paltz, owner of the parked vehicle, told authorities his car developed trouble and he went for assistance. He was cited for parking on the pavement. The summons is returnable before New Paltz Justice Rexford Schneider, June 7.

Three Democratic Hopefuls Pick Up Delegate Support

By United Press International

All three candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination picked up new convention delegate support during the weekend, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy leading the way with 32.

As Kennedy and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy rounded out their campaigns for the Tuesday Oregon primary, state party conventions in Iowa and Vermont settled delegate commitments for the national convention in August.

Backers Disappointed

While Kennedy outscored both opponents numerically, his backers were disappointed with result in Vermont, where 10 of the 22 delegates went to Humphrey, seven to the New Yorker and five to McCarthy.

With 46 delegate votes at stake in Iowa, Kennedy forces captured 25, Humphrey 9½ and McCarthy 5, with 6½ publicly uncommitted.

As the campaigns neared their end, both the Kennedy and McCarthy camps were predicting a close vote Tuesday.

Humphrey is not on the Oregon ballot. But a big vote for President Johnson, whose name is still on the ballot despite his withdrawal, was being billed as backing for Humphrey.

Richard M. Nixon is the only active GOP in the traditionally unpredictable primary although California Gov. Ronald Reagen's name is on the ballot and his Oregon supporters have done some campaigning for him.

Also, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's backers initiated a late-starting write-in campaign on his behalf.

In other political developments:

Polls — Newsweek Magazine said Sunday that Humphrey now has either solidly committed or leaning toward him all but 32½ delegate votes needed to win the nomination. The Gallup poll said more Americans currently would like to see a Republican in the White House instead of a Democrat.

Gov. Ronald Reagan—The California governor said Sunday he is convinced that an "open" Republican National Convention would consider all candidates—including him—and pick a nominee based on "winnability."

Richard M. Nixon — Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, a strong backer of Rockefeller, said he would "work and fight" at the GOP convention for the winner of the Oregon primary. Nixon, confident of victory, hailed McCall's statement as "added insurance" that he will win the nomination in August.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller—Rockefeller Sunday called for the creation of a new presidential office—the office of executive management—"to assure coherent planning and effective execution" of domestic programs.

Killed in Crash

LANSING, N. Y. (UPI)—George Hoag, 30, of nearby Groton, was killed Sunday when his car skidded 200 feet on a road in this Tompkins County community and slammed sideways into a tree. State police said the victim was traveling at a high rate of speed.

Nixon Waxes Confident

By JACK BELL

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, summing up five months of primary campaigning, says only an unusual combination of circumstances can deny him the Republican presidential nomination.

Barring some dramatic new development that cannot now be foreseen, Nixon said in an interview he is confident he can stand off the thrusts of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and California Gov. Ronald Reagan and walk off with the prize on an early ballot at the Miami Beach, Fla., convention.

One development which could cloud this optimistic picture, he concedes, would be an unexpected showing by Rockefeller and Reagan in Tuesday's Oregon primary balloting.

Nixon has lowered his sights in this last of the major primaries for the Republican contenders, maintaining that 55 per cent of the GOP vote will be a satisfactory victory. He has been averaging around 70 per cent in other primaries, where the combined Rockefeller-Reagan threat has not been serious.

If he wins in Oregon and adds South Dakota's 14 convention votes in a June 4 primary without further campaigning there, Nixon thinks he will have established a commanding lead in the nomination contest.

Nixon thinks that it might be possible for Rockefeller and Reagan to put together a combination with the favorite sons that could stall his convention bandwagon.

Nixon said if there ever was a chance that the Republican governors would swing their combined weight behind Rockefeller it has evaporated. The GOP governors will meet in Tulsa, Okla., June 14-15 to draft proposed convention platform planks and discuss candidates.

"I will have more governors supporting me than backing Rockefeller," he predicted.

Nixon said he expects a majority of the delegations headed by favorite sons to come over to his camp after a first ballot test of the candidates' standings.

He said, for example, that he regards Illinois, where Sen. Charles H. Percy may be the favorite son of the 58-vote delegation, as "my best state" in the Northern industrial complex.

Three Democratic Hopefuls Pick Up Delegate Support

By United Press International

All three candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination picked up new convention delegate support during the weekend, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy leading the way with 32.

As Kennedy and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy rounded out their campaigns for the Tuesday Oregon primary, state party conventions in Iowa and Vermont settled delegate commitments for the national convention in August.

Backers Disappointed

While Kennedy outscored both opponents numerically, his backers were disappointed with result in Vermont, where 10 of the 22 delegates went to Humphrey, seven to the New Yorker and five to McCarthy.

With 46 delegate votes at stake in Iowa, Kennedy forces captured 25, Humphrey 9½ and McCarthy 5, with 6½ publicly uncommitted.

As the campaigns neared their end, both the Kennedy and McCarthy camps were predicting a close vote Tuesday.

Humphrey is not on the Oregon ballot. But a big vote for President Johnson, whose name is still on the ballot despite his withdrawal, was being billed as backing for Humphrey.

Richard M. Nixon is the only active GOP in the traditionally unpredictable primary although California Gov. Ronald Reagen's name is on the ballot and his Oregon supporters have done some campaigning for him.

Also, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's backers initiated a late-starting write-in campaign on his behalf.

Death-Free Memorial Day

On Memorial Day, we pause to acknowledge our debt to the young men who are making the supreme sacrifice in Vietnam, where we are suffering tragic losses, and to all honored dead who have fought the other battles. Should we not also stop to reflect on our senseless highway traffic deaths?

Over 500,000 men, women and children are killed annually on our highways. The grim fact is worth noting that auto deaths are not discriminatory. The color of death is red on white cement or black tar. This truly is small comfort to the survivors, many of whom are scarred or crippled for life.

Beginning Memorial Day there will be more traffic on the highways in this area from now until Labor Day than any other three-month period. It is the hope of all that there will not be an upsurge of traffic deaths here.

With the holiday falling on Thursday, there is prospect for many for a long weekend. Motorists should use this lengthened period to devote more time to motor travel by reducing speed and driving more cautiously and carefully.

The death tolls in war or peace are fearful enough without adding to the total this weekend. Make this Memorial weekend death-free for you and your family.

Encourage Working

The Government, in the guise of the Social Security Administration, has raised the level of income for a nonfarm family of four, under which it would be regarded as poor, from $3,000 to $3,800 a year. The new index is based primarily on the cost of food needed for such a family, with twice that amount added for other necessities.

The mean line drawn by Social Security is based on a weekly wage of $65 for a family of four, totaling $4,380 a year. Of that, $21.67 a week would be spent for food and $43.33 for all other necessities, including housing, clothing and personal services.

Even at this higher figure, the number of persons living in poverty fell from 38.9 million in 1959 to 29.7 million in 1966, the last year for which complete figures were available .This is 6.6 million families. It is a drop of 9.1 million persons or two million families in seven years. The figures are furnished by Social Security's Office of Research and Statistics.

There is no data on the earnings of the remaining 29.7 million poor, or 6.6 million poor families. Such figures would be useful in ascertaining the number on relief or other forms of poverty grants and the number working at self-sustaining tasks. For there is considerable sentiment today about upgrading those who work by providing them either with some type of subsidy, such as a reverse income, making up to them the difference between their real earnings and the minimum poverty level, or a guaranteed annual income, or family grants.

If the reverse income or guaranteed annual income were based on the actual earnings of the poor, a case could be made for it as an incentive for working. A plan could be devised where the difference paid workers would be to make up lower earnings for each week they work; not for each week they are idle, as for instance workmen's compensation is now determined. Any new plan should encourage working. It should not be another handout that degrades the receiver.

Warning Supreme Court

By lopsided votes, the Senate has warned the Supreme Court and all Federal courts to restrain themselves in extending the rights of criminals and thereby encouraging crime in the street by handcuffing the police and prosecutors. This it did by reversing two recent decisions of the Supreme Court and holding in abeyance more rigid controls on the jurisdiction of these courts.

One law the Senate approved would reverse the decision in the Miranda case that held that confessions were not admissible, even if given voluntarily, unless the suspect had been informed of his right to counsel and silence before he had been interrogated. The second is in the Wade case, that suspects were entitled to counsel when they appeared in police lineups and that lineup identifications were inadmissable unless this right had been granted.

However, the Senate refused to strip Federal courts of jurisdiction to review or reverse any confession or lineup identification that had been upheld by any state; and refused to abolish the habeas corpus jurisdiction to review or reverse state court convictions.

The sum of these decisions, in our opinion, is that the Supreme Court is now on notice that it must heed the public rights in crime cases first, and if it exceeds its powers, the Senate stands ready to curb it further under the Constitution giving Congress the right to limit judicial jurisdiction. It should persuade the court to restrain its enthusiasm for criminals' rights over and beyond those of the victimized public.

"There's a Fellow Out Here Who Says He Needs Money!"

David Lawrence Says

Poverty Situations Best Handled Locally

WASHINGTON—Leaders in Congress are not exactly sure what the marchers who claim to represent the "poor" of the country really want. There is the deepest sympathy with any poverty-stricken persons, but doubt prevails nevertheless as to whether the demonstrators have really come to the right place to seek relief.

Up to now, the theory has been that it is primarly the obligation of each state to take care of the health, education and welfare of its residents and that, if it lacks sufficient funds, the federal government should supplement them.

So the impression is growing here that maybe, instead of the 3,000 marchers camping in Washington, they should go to the 50 different state capitals and put their case to the governors of their respective states. Then, if the money required to take care of the problem is not available, it would naturally be the function of the governors to request assistance from the national government, in which case, Congress could make the necessary appropriations.

Basically poverty situations are best handled by local authorities, anyway. For the states and cities each have welfare departments and a record of those who are in need of assistance. Although the federal government has had an "anti-poverty" program, it has been designed largely for job training of various kinds and educational aids for children. Many of the critics of these praticular programs have said that the states should have initiated such projects themselves.

To place on the federal government the complete responsibility for handling the welfare of the citizens in every community would require an enormous bureaucracy. Unfortunately, the demonstration here by the "poor" marchers dramatizes mainly the idea that the federal government is the place to go for direct assistance, irrespective of the duties which naturally fall on the state and city governments. If people are to be told that, no matter what their difficulties they should go directly to Washington, there would be no end to encampments and marches in the future.

For some time, many members of Congress have been saying that lots of money has been wasted in the so-called "anti-poverty" program, largely because the federal government doesn't have at its command the machinery which can be utilized efficiently in every state of the Union.

Certainly attention should be focused more sharply on all phases of the problem. It could be that the demonstration by the "poor people's march" will have some constructive effects. But the importance of the issue has already been recognized by the federal government and particularly in Congress. The Secretary of Agriculture, Orville L. Freeman, testified this week before the House Labor and Education Committee that 59 counties in 11 states have not set up machinery for food programs. These include distribution to the poor of government-owned surplus products as well as the "food stamp" program whereby persons and families with low incomes are able to purchase goods at reduced cost.

Secretary Freeman, moreover, said the CBS television program this week dramatizing the hunger problem "was shot full of errors." Members of Congress asked the secretary to document the errors. In the Senate, a subcommittee on employment, manpower and poverty, headed by Senator Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania, has also started hearings on hunger.

It would appear, therefore, that at least the problem is being given more public discussion than ever before. But the fact remains that the administrative tasks, if they are to be efficiently carried out, will have to be localized. It is a matter of great surprise that most governors of the states, who should know what is happening in their own localities, have not been inclined to explain comprehensively the plight of the poor to their constituents. Nor has there been any organized plan by the states to determine just what the federal government should supply for the poverty-stricken.

There are many ways by which the national government can supplement the work of the states. Until extensive programs have been worked out in each state, however, for the handling of the problems of the poor, and the requirements of each state are thoroughly investigated, Congress can hardly legislate effectively on the whole subject.

Drew Pearson Says

FBI Memos Show That Kennedy Authorized Eavesdropping

Plata Basin Pact

On March 22, 1967, Drew Pearson, traveling in South America, reported that the countries bordering the River Plata were considering a treaty to develop the Plata basin industrially and economically.

One year later, on May 21, 1968, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay concluded such an agreement.

WASHINGTON—Sen. Robbert F. Kennedy has denied that when Attorney General he authorized the wiretapping or bugging of Dr. Martin Luther King, or on any other of the FBI's eavesdropping activity.

In a conversation with the authors of this column last January, he denied that he knew anything about the FBI's eavesdropping. In referring to the bugging of lobbyist Fred Black's room in the Sheraton-Carlton hotel he said that he had not known about it until he read it in the newspapers.

Kennedy also denied having anything to do with the investigation of Bobby Baker, the ex-Senate Secretary who may have been investigated for the purpose of linking him with the then Vice President, Lyndon Johnson. Baker and Fred Black were intimate friends, and President Johnson has been convinced that Kennedy launched the Black probe as a means of knocking LBJ off his brother's 1964 ticket. Kennedy, however, denied this.

"If I had ordered an investigation of Bobby Baker," he told us, "someone would have written a memorandum to that effect; and there is no such memo."

It is not pleasant to be in the position of challenging the word of a member of the Kennedy family. In all deference to the former Attorney General, however, there exist some important memos in the Justice Department which show conclusively that he did have knowledge of eavesdropping and that he authorized part of it.

One memo was written on July 16, 1963, after Kennedy had requested a wiretap be placed on the phone of Dr. Martin Luther King. The memo explained how the FBI had persuaded Kennedy to change his mind — for the time being.

Bugging Fred Black

Another is a written notation on an FBI report on the bugging of Fred Black's room in the Carlton hotel. This eavesdropping was recorded in various memos in which FBI agents gave details on extensive conversations pertaining to the political affairs of Sen. Mike Monroney and Rep. Clark Albert of Oklahoma, Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, the legislative operations of President Johnson in getting bills through Congress, and the placing of North American Aviation and General Dynamics defense plants in certain Congressional districts in order to help friendly Congressmen. The monitored conversations also unearthed the fact that Bobby Baker was a frequent caller at Black's apartment. There was also some activity which FBI agents noted very discreetly as "sex activity with female."

These reports were definitely submitted to Attorney General Kennedy and he appeared to be very much interested in them. For he scribbled a notation on one report to Courtney Evans to keep him further advised.

Courtney Evans was then an assistant director of the FBI and liaison man between the FBI and the Attorney General's office.

Perhaps the most significant document involving Attorney General Kennedy in eavesdropping, however, was an FBI memo dated July 7, 1961, which reviewed the FBI's eavesdropping policy. This policy was to use bugging or "electronic devices" for crime investigation and wiretaps for national security cases, in other words listening in on foreign agents and potential spies. Kennedy was represented as "pleased" over the way the FBI was carrying on electronic eavesdropping.

The memo may explain why Bobby Kennedy has been so confident that no eavesdrop memos with his name signed to them exist in the Justice Department today. For he expressed the wish that the records be returned to the FBI and kept under "the special security conditions which only the FBI had."

Significant Memo

The memo is signed by FBI liaison man Courtney Evans who became Bobby's close friend and was entertained socially in the Kennedy home. Addressed to Alan H. Belmont, assistant director of the FBI, the memo reads:

"In line with the director's approval, the Attorney General was contacted this morning, July 7, 1961, relative to his observation as to the possibility of utilizing 'electronic devices' in organized crime investigations.

"It was pointed out to the Attorney General that we had taken action with regard to the use of microphone surveillances in these cases and, while they represented an expensive investigative step, we were nevertheless utilizing them in all instances where this was technically feasible and where valuable information might be expected. The strong objections to the utilization of telephone taps as contrasted to microphoned surveillances was stressed. The Attorney General stated he recognized the reasons why telephone taps should be restricted to national-defense-type cases and he was pleased we had been using microphone surveillances where these objections do not apply wherever possible in organized crime matters.

"The Attorney General noted that he had approved several technical surveillances in connection with security-type investigations since he took office, but that he had not kept any record and didn't really know what he had approved and what surveillances were currently in operation. He said that for his own information he would like to see a list of the technical surveillances now in operation. He added that this could be brought over to him personally and that he would look it over and immediately return it because he realized the importance of having these records maintained under the special security conditions which only the FBI had.

"If the director approves, we will have the list of technical surveillances prepared, delivered personally to the Attorney General and then returned to the bureau's file."

Mc Carthy Slips Off Pace, Gives Bobby Oregon Edge

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

PORTLAND, Ore. (NEA)

Oregon now seems to stand in splendid isolation as the one place where Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's six-state primary campaign might be briefly derailed. Yet no seasoned Democratic leader really thinks it will happen.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, who began the 1968 campaign in the garb of the idealistic champion of the opposition to President Johnson, emerges here merely as a potential spoiler of Kennedy's hopes for the presidential nomination.

In theory he should bring it off. Oregon is a state given to maverick independence, with no large ethnic groups of the sort Kennedy has been picking up elsewhere, with plenty of the kind of white-collar affluence that McCarthy has been winning in other places.

After one bad campaign day and another just moderately good, Kennedy shook his head and muttered privately in some puzzlement: "It's just one giant suburb."

Nevertheless, the feeling grows in the last days before the May 28 primary that McCarthy somehow is not going to do it.

In a brown suit (with an ex-professor's gray sweater half-hidden underneath), he did indeed capture the conservative business and professional men in Portland's prestigious City Club. Even the Chamber of Commerce dinner guests in La Grande in eastern Oregon succumbed to the senator's witty, ironic barbs. But something was—and is—missing.

A veteran observer suggested:

"He's the wrong instrument for exploiting the thing he has created in this campaign."

McCarthy's own aides appear to recognize it, though they do not say it in so many words. Mostly they prefer to blame Kennedy for being a spoiler without equal. Said one student on McCarthy's staff:

"Kennedy ruined our revolution."

Older heads, however, spell out point by point why McCarthy is not capitalizing on his evident advantages in Oregon.

In part, they come to the indictment of ineptitude—bad advance work, chaotic scheduling, canceled appearances, seeming indifference to some audiences, disagreements between the senator's Washington people and his field leaders. For all his effort to make this amateurism a crowning virtue, it has proved progressively more self-defeating.

Since his losses in Indiana and Nebraska, moreover, the money has tended to dry up. Shortages here are well-documented. Until this final week's splurge, his television exposure was crimped.

Underneath all this is a larger matter. McCarthy's approach, disdainful of standard politics, wins many who are weary of the usual. But it turns off many who are not. One Democrat who saw a typical McCarthy performance said:

"He didn't sound like a serious candidate to me."

Robert Kennedy does—too serious for those he alarms but captivating for those who like fire and dash in their candidates. Indiana and Nebraska results made it plain he scores best in votes in the places he visits personally. Television is actually a lesser aid.

So the decision was made, especially after that one bad day, to go it hard with Oregonians face-to-face.

New key organizational types rushed in to help put together the last smash tours of the state.

McCarthy backers and the confused friends of Vice President Hubert Humphrey (who do not know what to do here) like to lay Kennedy's successes to money outlay. But what they really fear is that when he is shown to voters at close hand, he wins far more votes than he loses. In good McCarthy country, that is Kennedy's hope for victory.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Heat shimmered off the Sunset Strip and the big girl on the Sahara billboard shivered in her cowboy hat. I saw Don a block away. He walked smartly, a tall elegant actor who could carry a gold-headed cane and mocha gloves without looking like a fop. It was hot that day, but Don disciplined his body so that it would not perspire.

He was surprised to see me. Standing next to him, I looked like a gray sack of rocks. Coffee was in order; it couldn't be as hot as the sun. We sat in a drugstore and spoke of other days. There is a way of talking on the outskirts of a topic. His was alcohol.

Along the front edges of the dark wavy hair he had some burned-out grass. The skin around the eyes displayed tick-tack-toe games. He had been a $500-a-week man when the casting directors beckoned. Every moviegoer with fast reflexes knew the face but not the name. There had been some years when the casting directors didn't want to know him.

"I got married," he said, almost too casually. I said "No." He withdrew a thin flat pin-seal wallet from his silk jacket. She had the moody face of a petulent child. The skin was Nordic; the hair was pale blonde. The blue eyes were no deeper than an inch of rain. The nose was a shiny button. The mouth pouted for more of something.

"Beautiful," I said. He nodded. "She is. Thelma has become my life." He was serious. "Third time?" I said, kidding. "Fourth?" Don shrugged and sipped the steaming coffee. "Three were mistakes," he said. "I didn't know it then. Each was a two-way blunder." "But this one?" I said.

"For real," he said. "Forever. How long you going to be in town?" "Flying east tonight." "Ah," he said, "too bad." We had known each other for years, and we always said: "Next time for sure." He spoke of Thelma as an artist might speak of his favorite painting. She was 20; he was 46. She was, I would guess, his mother too.

She knew what was good for him; what he shouldn't do. Thelma had been an extra in motion pictures, but he had put in a good word here and there and she was now permitted to speak a line or two. In the mornings, she showered the sugar on his corn flakes; at night, she turned the TV set off and tucked Don in.

"I beat the booze," he said. This was the subject we planned to avoid. "I knew you would," I said, and this was my second lie. He admitted that he had been in a bad way. He had holed up in a furnished room away out on Melrose and tried to drink himself through the floor.

"No one beats it," he said, apologetically. "What I mean is, I have learned to live with myself." He had been a member of Alcoholics Anonymous and they had a big place in Los Angeles, replete with palm trees, games and a soft drink bar. Don sobered and began to fly rightside up. He became so enamored of the subject of alcoholism that he went on to a psychiatrist who specialized in it.

From there, he had enrolled in a college and majored in abnormal psychology at night. I was impressed. "No one beats it," he said. "I'm still the same alcoholic, but I no longer crave the stuff." "How long?" I said. Most alcoholics can tell you exactly how long. He figured on his fingers. "Six years thereabouts."

I was interested. "Under what circumstances would you return to liquor?" I said. It was a bad question. He frowned at what was left of the coffee in the bottom of the cup. A big sigh came out. "I would say that if I faced an insoluble problem," he said. "You know, something that hurt bad and couldn't be straightened out." "Like losing a leg," I said. He shook his head. "No," he said. "I could learn to live with it."

When I got home he sent a note and told me that he had spent the evening explaining me to his love, his life, his Thelma. He had even told her about the insoluble problem. Candy face was, I would guess, impressed.

A year later there was a paragraph in the AP copy that Don had died. He had been found by a cleaning woman on his living room rug. A bottle was in his hand. The neck had been smashed off. Slivers of glass in his stomach induced leaks.

That was a few years ago. Last autumn, my wife and I were introduced to Thelma. She is now married to a young motorcycle actor. It was too bad about Don, she said. She told him that he was too old for her, that she really loved the boy with the boots and the sunglasses. An insoluble problem.

French See Maoist Conspiracy

By MARK GAYN
(Chicago Daily News Foreign Service)

PARIS—If the French are to be believed, the chaos here is the product of a Maoist conspiracy.

A number of western diplomats and journalists have been told by their French contacts that Peking had instigated the turbulent crisis here to undermine the Vietnam peace talks, of which it vigorously disapproves.

The small pro-Chinese Communist parties here, according to this version of French history, were instructed to stir up violence in the universities and in the streets. This task they have carried out. As proof of the Peking conspiracy, the French informants point to the portraits of Mao Tse-Tung on university campuses, to Mao quotations pasted on the walls of the Sorbonne and to the utterances of some of the extreme student leaders.

But this is not the end of the story. According to the same sources, Moscow suddenly became aware of the Chinese plot and decided to thwart it. This was when the "official" French Communist party came out in opposition to the student movement, and openly denounced some of its leaders.

The embellishments of this tale are many. A typical one, told to a senior North American diplomat, is that the Chinese Embassy here has a staff of 1,000, most of whom have been busy organizing the antigovernment forces.

Officially, no such charge has been laid against the Chinese. Several cabinet ministers, however, have spoken darkly, although with a deliberate vagueness, of outsiders stirring up trouble.

The incredible upheaval here has, of course, affected the talks, if for no other reason that the inconvenience caused. The city has been cut off from the world, with air, train and bus travel halted, with the postal and telegraph workers on strike, and with the telephone working only erratically.

Paris taxis struck for an indefinite period. Gasoline for private cars is running short. The central food market is shut by a strike. And there is fear that electric power might give out.

The Russians, however, have resolved the main worry of the North Vietnamese delegation. Unable to use the French telegraph, it is using the Soviet Embassy's communications equipment to file its messages to Hanoi. It is not clear whether the code used is that of the North Vietnamese or the Russians.

Death-Free Memorial Day

On Memorial Day, we pause to acknowledge our debt to the young men who are making the supreme sacrifice in Vietnam, where we are suffering tragic losses, and to all honored dead who have fought the other battles. Should we not also stop to reflect on our senseless highway traffic deaths?

Over 500,000 men, women and children are killed annually on our highways. The grim fact is worth noting that auto deaths are not discriminatory. The color of death is red on white cement or black tar. This truly is small comfort to the survivors, many of whom are scarred or crippled for life.

Beginning Memorial Day there will be more traffic on the highways in this area from now until Labor Day than any other three-month period. It is the hope of all that there will not be an upsurge of traffic deaths here.

With the holiday falling on Thursday, there is prospect for many for a long weekend. Motorists should use this lengthened period to devote more time to motor travel by reducing speed and driving more cautiously and carefully.

The death tolls in war or peace are fearful enough without adding to the total this weekend. Make this Memorial weekend death-free for you and your family.

Encourage Working

The Government, in the guise of the Social Security Administration, has raised the level of income for a nonfarm family of four, under which it would be regarded as poor, from $3,000 to $3,800 a year. The new index is based primarily on the cost of food needed for such a family, with twice that amount added for other necessities.

The mean line drawn by Social Security is based on a weekly wage of $65 for a family of four, totaling $4,380 a year. Of that, $21.67 a week would be spent for food and $43.33 for all other necessities, including housing, clothing and personal services.

Even at this higher figure, the number of persons living in poverty fell from 38.9 million in 1959 to 29.7 million in 1966, the last year for which complete figures were available .This is 6.6 million families. It is a drop of 9.1 million persons or two million families in seven years. The figures are furnished by Social Security's Office of Research and Statistics.

There is no data on the earnings of the remaining 29.7 million poor, or 6.6 million poor families. Such figures would be useful in ascertaining the number on relief or other forms of poverty grants and the number working at self-sustaining tasks. For there is considerable sentiment today about upgrading those who work by providing them either with some type of subsidy, such as a reverse income, making up to them the difference between their real earnings and the minimum poverty level, or a guaranteed annual income, or family grants.

If the reverse income or guaranteed annual income were based on the actual earnings of the poor, a case could be made for it as an incentive for working. A plan could be devised where the difference paid workers would be to make up lower earnings for each week they work; not for each week they are idle, as for instance workmen's compensation is now determined. Any new plan should encourage working. It should not be another handout that degrades the receiver.

Warning Supreme Court

By lopsided votes, the Senate has warned the Supreme Court and all Federal courts to restrain themselves in extending the rights of criminals and thereby encouraging crime in the street by handcuffing the police and prosecutors. This it did by reversing two recent decisions of the Supreme Court and holding in abeyance more rigid controls on the jurisdiction of these courts.

One law the Senate approved would reverse the decision in the Miranda case that held that confessions were not admissible, even if given voluntarily, unless the suspect had been informed of his right to counsel and silence before he had been interrogated. The second is in the Wade case, that suspects were entitled to counsel when they appeared in police lineups and that lineup identifications were inadmissable unless this right had been granted.

However, the Senate refused to strip Federal courts of jurisdiction to review or reverse any confession or lineup identification that had been upheld by any state; and refused to abolish the habeas corpus jurisdiction to review or reverse state court convictions.

The sum of these decisions, in our opinion, is that the Supreme Court is now on notice that it must heed the public rights in crime cases first, and if it exceeds its powers, the Senate stands ready to curb it further under the Constitution giving Congress the right to limit judicial jurisdiction. It should persuade the court to restrain its enthusiasm for criminals' rights over and beyond those of the victimized public.

"There's a Fellow Out Here Who Says He Needs Money!"

David Lawrence Says

Poverty Situations Best Handled Locally

WASHINGTON—Leaders in Congress are not exactly sure what the marchers who claim to represent the "poor" of the country really want. There is the deepest sympathy with any poverty-stricken persons, but doubt prevails nevertheless as to whether the demonstrators have really come to the right place to seek relief.

Up to now, the theory has been that it is primarily the obligation of each state to take care of the health, education and welfare of its residents and that, if it lacks sufficient funds, the federal government should supplement them.

So the impression is growing here that maybe, instead of the 3,000 marchers camping in Washington, they should go to the 50 different state capitals and put their case to the governors of their respective states. Then, if the money required to take care of the problem is not available, it would naturally be the function of the governors to request assistance from the national government, in which case, Congress could make the necessary appropriations.

Basically poverty situations are best handled by local authorities, anyway. For the states and cities each have welfare departments and a record of those who are in need of assistance. Although the federal government has had an "anti-poverty" program, it has been designed largely for job training of various kinds and educational aids for children. Many of the critics of these praticular programs have said that the states should have initiated such projects themselves.

To place on the federal government the complete responsibility for handling the welfare of the citizens in every community would require an enormous bureaucracy. Unfortunately, the demonstration here by the "poor" marchers dramatizes mainly the idea that the federal government is the place to go for direct assistance, irrespective of the duties which naturally fall on the state and city governments. If people are to be told that, no matter what their difficulties they should go directly to Washington, there would be no end to encampments and marches in the future.

For some time, many members of Congress have been saying that lots of money has been wasted in the so-called "anti-poverty" program, largely because the federal government doesn't have at its command the machinery which can be utilized efficiently in every state of the Union.

Certainly attention should be focused more sharply on all phases of the problem. It could be that the demonstration by the "poor people's march" will have some constructive effects. But the importance of the issue has already been recognized by the federal government and particularly in Congress. The Secretary of Agriculture, Orville L. Freeman, testified this week before the House Labor and Education Committee that 59 counties in 11 states have not set up machinery for food programs. These include distribution to the poor of government-owned surplus products as well as the "food stamp" program whereby persons and families with low incomes are able to purchase goods at reduced cost.

Secretary Freeman, moreover, said the CBS television program this week dramatizing the hunger problem "was shot full of errors." Members of Congress asked the secretary to document the errors. In the Senate, a subcommittee on employment, manpower and poverty, headed by Senator Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania, has also started hearings on hunger.

It would appear, therefore, that at least the problem is being given more public discussion than ever before. But the fact remains that the administrative tasks, if they are to be efficiently carried out, will have to be localized. It is a matter of great surprise that most governors of the states, who should know what is happening in their own localities, have not been inclined to explain comprehensively the plight of the poor to their constituents. Nor has there been any organized plan by the states to determine just what the federal government should supply for the poverty-stricken.

There are many ways by which the national government can supplement the work of the states. Until extensive programs have been worked out in each state, however, for the handling of the problems of the poor, and the requirements of each state are thoroughly investigated, Congress can hardly legislate effectively on the whole subject.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Heat shimmered off the Sunset Strip and the big girl on the Sahara billboard shivered in her cowboy hat. I saw Don a block away. He walked smartly, a tall elegant actor who could carry a gold-headed cane and mocha gloves without looking like a fop. It was hot that day, but Don disciplined his body so that it would not perspire.

He was surprised to see me. Standing next to him, I looked like a gray sack of rocks. Coffee was in order; it couldn't be as hot as the sun. We sat in a drugstore and spoke of other days. There is a way of talking on the outskirts of a topic. His was alcohol.

Along the front edges of the dark wavy hair he had some burned-out grass. The skin around the eyes displayed tick-tack-toe games. He had been a $500-a-week man when the casting directors beckoned. Every moviegoer with fast reflexes knew the face but not the name. There had been some years when the casting directors didn't want to know him.

"I got married," he said, almost too casually. I said "No." He withdrew a thin flat pin-seal wallet from his silk jacket. She had the moody face of a petulent child. The skin was Nordic; the hair was pale blonde. The blue eyes were no deeper than an inch of rain. The nose was a shiny button. The mouth pouted for more of something.

FBI Memos Show That Kennedy Authorized Eavesdropping

Plata Basin Pact

On March 22, 1967, Drew Pearson, traveling in South America, reported that the countries bordering the River Plata were considering a treaty to develop the Plata basin industrially and economically.

One year later, on May 21, 1968, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay concluded such an agreement.

WASHINGTON—Sen. Robbert F. Kennedy has denied that when Attorney General he authorized the wiretapping or bugging of Dr. Martin Luther King, or on any other of the FBI's eavesdropping activity.

In a conversation with the authors of this column last January, he denied that he knew anything about the FBI's eavesdropping. In referring to the bugging of lobbyist Fred Black's room in the Sheraton-Carlton hotel he said that he had not known about it until he read it in the newspapers.

Kennedy also denied having anything to do with the investigation of Bobby Baker, the ex-Senate Secretary who may have been investigated for the purpose of linking him with the then Vice President, Lyndon Johnson. Baker and Fred Black were intimate friends, and President Johnson has been convinced that Kennedy launched the Black probe as a means of knocking LBJ off his brother's 1964 ticket. Kennedy, however, denied this.

"If I had ordered an investigation of Bobby Baker," he told us, "someone would have written a memorandum to that effect; and there is no such memo."

It is not pleasant to be in the position of challenging the word of a member of the Kennedy family. In all deference to the former Attorney General, however, there exist some important memos in the Justice Department which conclusively that he did have knowledge of eavesdropping and that he authorized part of it.

One memo was written on July 16, 1963, after Kennedy had requested a wiretap be placed on the phone of Dr. Martin Luther King. The memo explained how the FBI had persuaded Kennedy to change his mind — for the time being.

Bugging Fred Black

Another is a written notation on an FBI report on the bugging of Fred Black's room in the Carlton hotel. This eavesdropping was recorded in various memos in which FBI agents gave details on extensive conversations pertaining to the political affairs of Sen. Mike Monroney and Rep. Clark Albert of Oklahoma, Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, the legislative operations of President Johnson in getting bills through Congress, and the placing of North American Aviation and General Dynamics defense plants in certain Congressional districts in order to help friendly Congressmen. The monitored conversations also unearthed the fact that Bobby Baker was a frequent caller at Black's apartment. There was also some activity which FBI agents noted very discreetly as "sex activity with female."

These reports were definitely submitted to Attorney General Kennedy and he appeared to be very much interested in them. For he scribbled a notation on one report to Courtney Evans to keep him further advised.

Courtney Evans was then an assistant director of the FBI and liaison man between the FBI and the Attorney General's office.

Perhaps the most significant document involving Attorney General Kennedy in eavesdropping, however, was an FBI memo dated July 7, 1961, which reviewed the FBI's eavesdropping policy. This policy was to use bugging or "electronic devices" for crime investigation and wiretaps for national security cases, in other words listening in on foreign agents and potential spies. Kennedy was represented as "pleased" over the way the FBI was carrying on electronic eavesdropping.

The memo may explain why Bobby Kennedy has been so confident that no eavesdrop memos with his name signed to them exist in the Justice Department today. For he expressed the wish that the records be returned to the FBI and kept under "the special security conditions which only the FBI had."

Significant Memo

The memo is signed by FBI liaison man Courtney Evans who became Bobby's close friend and was entertained socially in the Kennedy home. Addressed to Alan H. Belmont, assistant director of the FBI, the memo reads:

"In line with the director's approval, the Attorney General was contacted this morning, July 7, 1961, relative to his observation as to the possibility of utilizing 'electronic devices' in organized crime investigations.

"It was pointed out to the Attorney General that we had taken action with regard to the use of microphone surveillances in these cases and, while they represented an expensive investigative step, we were nevertheless utilizing them in all instances where this was technically feasible and where valuable information might be expected. The strong objections to the utilization of telephone taps as contrasted to microphoned surveillances was stressed. The Attorney General stated he recognized the reasons why telephone taps should be restricted to national-defense-type cases and he was pleased we had been using microphone surveillances where these objections do not apply wherever possible in organized crime matters.

"The Attorney General noted that he had approved several technical surveillances in connection with security-type investigations since he took office, but that he had not kept any record and didn't really know what he had approved and what surveillances were currently in operation. He said that for his own information he would like to see a list of the technical surveillances now in operation. He added that this could be brought over to him personally and that he would look it over and immediately return it because he realized the importance of having these records maintained under the special security conditions which only the FBI had.

"If the director approves, we will have the list of technical surveillances prepared, delivered personally to the Attorney General and then returned to the bureau's file."

Mc Carthy Slips Off Pace, Gives Bobby Oregon Edge

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

PORTLAND, Ore. (NEA)

Oregon now seems to stand in splendid isolation as the one place where Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's six-state primary campaign might be briefly derailed. Yet no seasoned Democratic leader really thinks it will happen.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, who began the 1968 campaign in the garb of the idealistic champion of the opposition to President Johnson, emerges here merely as a potential spoiler of Kennedy's hopes for the presidential nomination.

In theory he should bring it off. Oregon is a state given to maverick independence, with no large ethnic groups of the sort Kennedy has been picking up elsewhere, with plenty of the kind of white-collar affluence that McCarthy has been winning in other places.

After one bad campaign day and another just moderately good, Kennedy shook his head and muttered privately in some puzzlement: "It's just one giant suburb."

Nevertheless, the feeling grows in the last days before the May 28 primary that McCarthy somehow is not going to do it.

In a brown suit (with an ex-professor's gray sweater half-hidden underneath), he did indeed capture the conservative business and professional men in Portland's prestigious City Club. Even the Chamber of Commerce dinner guests in La Grande in eastern Oregon succumbed to the senator's witty, ironic barbs. But something was—and is—missing.

A veteran observer suggested:

"He's the wrong instrument for exploiting the thing he has created in this campaign."

McCarthy's own aides appear to recognize it, though they do not say it in so many words. Mostly they prefer to blame Kennedy for being a spoiler without equal. Said one student on McCarthy's staff:

"Kennedy ruined our revolution."

Older heads, however, spell out point by point why McCarthy is not capitalizing on his evident advantages in Oregon.

In part, they come to the indictment of ineptitude—bad advance work, chaotic scheduling, canceled appearances, seeming indifference to some audiences, disagreements between the senator's Washington people and his field leaders. For all his effort to make this amateurism a crowning virtue, it has proved progressively more self-defeating.

Since his losses in Indiana and Nebraska, moreover, the money has tended to dry up. Shortages here are well-documented. Until this final week's splurge, his television exposure was crimped.

Underneath all this is a larger matter. McCarthy's approach, disdainful of standard politics, wins many who are weary of the usual. But it turns off many who are not. One Democrat who saw a typical McCarthy performance said:

"He didn't sound like a serious candidate to me."

Robert Kennedy does—too serious for those he alarms but captivating for those who like fire and dash in their candidates. Indiana and Nebraska results made it plain he scores best in votes in the places he visits personally. Television is actually a lesser aid.

So the decision was made, especially after that one bad day, to go it hard with Oregonians face-to-face.

New key organizational types rushed in to help put together the last smash tours of the state.

McCarthy backers and the confused friends of Vice President Hubert Humphrey (who do not know what to do here) like to lay Kennedy's successes to money outlay. But what they really fear is that when he is shown to voters at close hand, he wins far more votes than he loses. In good McCarthy country, that is Kennedy's hope for victory.

Republicans and Democrats Rated Even on Issues

By GEORGE GALLUP

Copyright, 1968, American Institute of Public Opinion. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 25—Further evidence that the presidential election is likely be a close one comes from a survey designed to measure the strength of issues uppermost in the minds of Americans.

The outcome of the peace talks in Paris and the threat of racial turmoil in the cities this summer will obviously have a big impact on the choice of candidates and parties. But if the election were being held at this time, based upon issues alone, the two parties would be almost exactly even, with the the GOP holding a tiny edge.

Vietnam Top Problem

In a nationwide survey completed in early May, 42 per cent of all persons interviewed cited the Vietnam war as the most important problem while the next largest number, 25 per cent, cited race relations.

The problems named third and fourth most frequently in the latest survey are crime and lawlessness (named by 15 per cent) and the high cost of living (mentioned by 8 per cent).

1534 Adults Interviewed

A national sample of 1534 adults in the current survey were first asked this question: "What do you think is the most important problem facing this country today?

Here are the top problems named:

Top Problems Facing Nation?

Vietnam situation	42%
Race relations	25
Crime and lawlessness (includes riots, looting, delinquency)	15
High cost of living, taxes	8
Poverty	4
General unrest in nation	3
Other categories	9
Don't know, no anwser	3
	109%

*(Total adds to more than 100 per cent since some persons gave more than one answer.)

All persons who named a problem were then asked:

"Which political party do you think can do a better job of handling the problem you have just mentioned—the Republican party or the Democratic party?"

Voting Behavior

The question as to which of the two major parties can best deal with the problem uppermost in the mind of the voter has provided a sensitive barometer of voting behavior.

The division in the latest survey:

Party Best Handle Top Problems?

Republican party	30%
Democratic party	28
No difference, no opin	42

When the views of those who said "no difference" or "the same" and those who express no opinion are divided equally between the two parties, the division is:

Republican Party	51%
Democratic Party	49

Barometer Accurate

The experience of two decades has shown how accurately this issue barometer can reflect the division of the vote in elections.

In mid-October, 1966—when the top problems were, as today, the Vietnam war, racial strife and the high cost of living—the Democrats held a 53-47 edge over the Republicans. This division was closely reflected in the congressional elections that November when the vote was 52-48 on the Democratic side.

In October, 1964, the Democrats 63-37 advantage in this measurement was reflected in the presidential vote the following month. Johnson defeated Goldwater by a 61-39 margin.

Still earlier—in September, 1962— the Democrats enjoyed a wide 58-42 advantage on this barometer which showed up in their decisive victory in the congressional elections that year.

In the fall of 1960, the Democratic party had a narrow 52-48 lead over the Republicans in terms of the party best able to deal with the top problems, and this close division anticipated the results of the 1960 election, one of the closest in history.

Present GOP Strength

GOP strength in the latest measurement, while higher than at the first of the year, is still below that recorded last October, when Republicans led the Democrats for the first time in a decade by 30 to 26 per cent.

The Republican party has improved its position greatly since October, 1964, prior to that year's presidential election. At that time the Democrats held a 63-37 advantage as the party best able to handle the top problems.

Democratic losses on this measurement since 1964 have not translated directly into gains for the GOP. Many voters who earlier had expressed confidence in the Democratic party's ability to deal with top problems can now be found among the uncommitted — those who presently see no difference in the ability of the two parties to deal with the top problems or who have no opinion. In the current survey, 42 per cent are in this uncommitted group. Last October the comparable figure was also 42 per cent and in October, 1964, 29 per cent.

Too High Value Placed On Viet Peace Talks

By PETER LISAGOR
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — Many Americans have been misled into placing too high a value on Vietnam peace talks and expecting "too much, too soon," says a group of prominant citizens, including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"There is unmistakable evidence that Ho Chi Minh thinks of negotiations as another way to fight a war—in effect, as another weapons system," the group said today in a 1,760-word statement on the Paris negotiations.

The United States should not "exert pressure" on South Vietnam to accept a coalition government, the statement said.

If the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, is to be represented in the political structure in the south, it should be the result of "free political choice" expressed by all citizens of South Vietnam, it said.

The group, which, besides Mr. Eisenhower, includes former Illinois Sen. Paul H. Douglas, James B. Conant, Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. Lucius D. Clay and members of the clergy, college and business world, often has reflected administration thinking.

Mr. Eisenhower took part in drafting the statement before his recent heart attack, Douglas said in releasing the statement entitled: "Negotiations —Hopes vs Realties."

Warning that the road to a negotiated settlement of the war is "likely to be long and hard . . . to twist and turn and take agonizing detours," the statement said the United States appears, in Hanoi's eyes, to be impatient to end the war and unwilling to sustain its continuing costs.

"In both areas — time and cost—impatience may indeed be our deadliest enemy," the statement said.

If negotiations should break down, the committee cautioned, the United States must "weigh carefully the danger of over-reacting and of sharply escalating our military effort in search of a quick 'victory.'

"'Winning' in Vietnam at the expense of losing our position in the world would be a pyrrhic triumph."

Even though military progress in Vietnam has been considerable, the committee said "We cannot expect to win at the conference table what we have not won on the battlefield. Equally, we must avoid losing at the conference table what we have fought so hard, and given so much, to protect."

It urged Americans "not to be discouraged or deceived by rhetoric. It is not how Hanoi says something; it is what it says . . . and more importantly, does.

Negotiations are desirable if they lead to a mutual de-escalation of the conflict or advance the country's minimum objectives, but they will be "dangerous and undesirable" if they develop into a protracted sequence of meaningless discussions while a high daily toll of death and disability is being paid on the battlefield, the report said.

"Negotiations will be insupportable if Hanoi escalates its military effort in the face of the reduction in ours," it said.

The pressure not to break off the talks, once begun, will be "infinitely more insistent" on the United States than on Hanoi, the report emphasized, because "we are highly responsive to domestic and to world opinion: Hanoi is far less responsive to both."

The Gallup Report

Republicans and Democrats Rated Even on Issues

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N. J., May 25—Further evidence that the presidential election is likely be a close one comes from a survey designed to measure the strength of issues uppermost in the minds of Americans.

The outcome of the peace talks in Paris and the threat of racial turmoil in the cities this summer will obviously have a big impact on the choice of candidates and parties. But if the election were being held at this time, based upon issues alone, the two parties would be almost exactly even, with the the GOP holding a tiny edge.

Vietnam Top Problem

In a nationwide survey completed in early May, 42 per cent of all persons interviewed cited the Vietnam war as the most important problem while the next largest number, 25 per cent, cited race relations.

The problems named third and fourth most frequently in the latest survey are crime and lawlessness (named by 15 per cent) and the high cost of living (mentioned by 8 per cent).

1534 Adults Interviewed

A national sample of 1534 adults in the current survey were first asked this question: "What do you think is the most important problem facing this country today?

Here are the top problems named:

Top Problems Facing Nation?

Vietnam situation	42%
Race relations	25
Crime and lawlessness (includes riots, looting, delinquency)	15
High cost of living, taxes	8
Poverty	4
General unrest in nation	3
Other categories	9
Don't know, no anwser	3
	109%

*(Total adds to more than 100 per cent since some persons gave more than one answer.)

All persons who named a problem were then asked:

"Which political party do you think can do a better job of handling the problem you have just mentioned—the Republican party or the Democratic party?"

Voting Behavior

The question as to which of the two major parties can best deal with the problem uppermost in the mind of the voter has provided a sensitive barometer of voting behavior.

The division in the latest survey:

Party Best Handle Top Problems?

Republican party	30%
Democratic party	28
No difference, no opin	42

When the views of those who said "no difference" or "the same" and those who express no opinion are divided equally between the two parties, the division is:

Republican Party	51%
Democratic Party	49

Barometer Accurate

The experience of two decades has shown how accurately this issue barometer can reflect the division of the vote in elections.

In mid-October, 1966—when the top problems were, as today, the Vietnam war, racial strife and the high cost of living—the Democrats held a 53-47 edge over the Republicans. This division was closely reflected in the congressional elections that November when the vote was 52-48 on the Democratic side.

In October, 1964, the Democrats 63-37 advantage in this measurement was reflected in the presidential vote the following month. Johnson defeated Goldwater by a 61-39 margin.

Still earlier—in September, 1962— the Democrats enjoyed a wide 58-42 advantage on this barometer which showed up in their decisive victory in the congressional elections that year.

In the fall of 1960, the Democratic party had a narrow 52-48 lead over the Republicans in terms of the party best able to deal with the top problems, and this close division anticipated the results of the 1960 election, one of the closest in history.

Present GOP Strength

GOP strength in the latest measurement, while higher than at the first of the year, is still below that recorded last October, when Republicans led the Democrats for the first time in a decade by 30 to 26 per cent.

The Republican party has improved its position greatly since October, 1964, prior to that year's presidential election. At that time the Democrats held a 63-37 advantage as the party best able to handle the top problems.

Democratic losses on this measurement since 1964 have not translated directly into gains for the GOP. Many voters who earlier had expressed confidence in the Democratic party's ability to deal with top problems can now be found among the uncommitted — those who presently see no difference in the ability of the two parties to deal with the top problems or who have no opinion. In the current survey, 42 per cent are in this uncommitted group. Last October the comparable figure was also 42 per cent and in October, 1964, 29 per cent.

Paris Talks Are Remote For Pecks' Bad Boys

CAI LAY, Vietnam (AP) — Paris, Capt. Mike Peck led 100 The day peace talks started in Paris, Capt. Mike Peck led 100 Americans on a daylong trek through the mucky paddyfields and steaming nipa palms of the Mekong Delta.

It was a frustrating search along the sluggish Bao Ba River for an enemy hideout that was never found. The sun was blistering and the company ran out of fresh water, drinking stinking canal water made worse tasting by bitter purification tablets. There was no time to eat.

The men were beat when they came back to their bunkered camp at sundown. They gulped down a hot meal and dropped off to sleep on dirty blankets, still grimy from the delta's mud.

"It was just another day, a typical dry-hole," the husky, 27-year-old company commander recalled. "Nobody even mentioned the peace talks. I don't think my 'hoodlums' gave it a thought."

Peck's "hoodlums"—he sometimes also calls them "my merry mob"—are almost all draftees, many of them teen-agers. A sergeant of 24 considers himself a father-figure.

For them, the diplomatic convolutions of Paris are remote and unreal—as most of the world becomes unreal to an infantryman whose life depends on his rifle and immediate buddies.

Since the Americans and North Vietnamese began talking in Paris, the company has been on the march daily, seeking guerrillas who slip along canals and through villages they have known since childhood. At night the Americans put out ambushes and roaming, six-man 'killer patrols.'

With constant movement a part of his life, an infantryman in Vietnam has few benchmarks to judge time. Ask him what he has done since the peace talks started May 13 and he will reply, "How long ago was that?"

"Everything sort of blends in out here," says Peck, who is from Milford, Ohio, speaks French and English, served an exchange tour with the French army's paratroops and is on his second tour in Vietnam.

"You know," said Pfc. Dwight Shuey, a 20-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., "we're not as bad as we sound. We do try to follow things. We talk about the peace talks sometimes but the war still goes on. It's the war we think about mostly."

"I do believe in the cause of this war," Shuey said. "I think we should be here. A lot of times I don't agree with how it is being fought but I think we should be here. . ."

His platoon sergeant, William Gulden of Pennington, N.J., a husky 24-year-old who plans to go home to study psychology, agreed, with reservations.

"Most of the guys couldn't care less what happens in Paris," he shrugged. "They know it won't affect anybody here for a long, long time."

One Patient Escapee Seized, 3 Are Freed

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) —One of three escaped mental patients was captured today after three of four hostages they seized were released.

Still held was Frank Svehla, 53, a psychiatric technician at Atascadero State Hospital, from which the three men fled Sunday.

The three, all with criminal records, armed and considered extremely dangerous, stabbed two guards, Sgt. Dave Baro and Robin Moore, when they broke from the hospital 20 miles north of here.

They took the wounded guards, Svehla and Mrs. Dorothy Warren, 40, also a psychiatric technician, as hostages.

Sheriff's officers, police and highway patrolmen threw up road blocks throughout the county.

Officers captured Robert Higuera near Pismo Beach, 12 miles south of here.

Mrs. Warren was released unharmed before the capture, the sheriff's officer said.

With an all-out manhunt under way, he said, the three men holed up Sunday night at a house in Los Osos, a community six miles northwest of here.

The family returned home about 7:30 p.m. and was held hostage until about 9:15 p.m., he said.

Then, the officer related, the men split up, taking the family's two cars. The family was not harmed.

Negotiators Try Again on Nigerian War

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Negotiators from Biafra and Uganda sat down today in a final effort to salvage talks aimed at ending Nigeria's 10-month-old civil war.

Sir Louis Mbanefo, head of the Biafran team, and Nigerian delegation leader Chief Anthony Enahoro met with President Milton Obote of Uganda and Commonwealth Secretary Arnold Smith.

Mbanefo had threatened to take his delegation back to Biafra because of repeated delays in getting down to the question of a cease-fire.

The Biafrans have complained that the Nigerians delayed the meeting a half hour Sunday, 90 minutes Saturday and one hour Thursday.

Enahoro said the delays resulted from the disappearance Thursday of a Nigerian confidential secretary. He said Lagos had at first ordered him to hold off the talks pending a report on the missing man. Later, he said, he received orders to continue without the secretary.

Nigeria insists there will be no cease-fire until the Biafrans give up their claim to sovereignty.

Polite Robbery

RANDALLSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Two masked bandits robbed two brothers Sunday as they drove their dates home from a high school prom.

The bandits halted their victims' auto by lining five glass gallon jugs across a country road.

Negotiators Try Again on Nigerian War

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Negotiators from Biafra and Uganda sat down today in a final effort to salvage talks aimed at ending Nigeria's 10-month-old civil war.

Sir Louis Mbanefo, head of the Biafran team, and Nigerian delegation leader Chief Anthony Enahoro met with President Milton Obote of Uganda and Commonwealth Secretary Arnold Smith.

Mbanefo had threatened to take his delegation back to Biafra because of repeated delays in getting down to the question of a cease-fire.

The Biafrans have complained that the Nigerians delayed the meeting a half hour Sunday, 90 minutes Saturday and one hour Thursday.

Enahoro said the delays resulted from the disappearance Thursday of a Nigerian confidential secretary. He said Lagos had at first ordered him to hold off the talks pending a report on the missing man. Later, he said, he received orders to continue without the secretary.

Nigeria insists there will be no cease-fire until the Biafrans give up their claim to sovereignty.

Polite Robbery

RANDALLSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Two masked bandits robbed two brothers Sunday as they drove their dates home from a high school prom.

The bandits halted their victims' auto by lining five glass gallon jugs across a country road.

The bandits refused to take money from the girls and allowed the four to drive off after taking $35 from the brothers at gunpoint.

The Voice. Anybody's voice. Your voice. It has a special quality and timbre all its own. But.

If it should become hoarse or if a cough should persist, find out what the reason is. Promptly. It could be a warning signal of cancer. And cancer is easier to cure when it's detected early.

Frank Sinatra knows the seven warning signals of cancer. Do you?

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge. 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere. 3. A sore that does not heal. 4. Change in bowel or bladder habits. 5. Hoarseness or cough. 6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. 7. Change in a wart or mole.

If a signal lasts longer than two weeks, see your doctor without delay.

Millerton Crash Fatal to Three

A spectacular headon collision of two cars on Route 22 near the Dutchess County community of Millerton, left three members of a Pawling family dead and two other persons injured Saturday night.

Dover Plains State Police recorded the dead as Robert Kirk, 59-year-old employe of the New York Central Railroad; his wife, Marie and their son, Robert, 32, all residents of 8 Gretenlawn Drive in Pawling.

Injured and reportedly in critical condition at the Sharon Hospital in Connecticut, is Vanness Baker, 31, of New Milford, Conn., operator of one of the vehicles. His wife, Marilyn, 33, suffered a compound fracture of the left ankle, broken nose, lacerations and cerebral condition. The hospital listed her condition as fair.

According to state police investigators the Kirk vehicle was traveling south on the Harlem Valley highway and Baker was driving north when his car reportedly entered the southbound lane and the headon collision resulted.

Kirk also was a free lance photographer, authorities said, in addition to his employment on the railroad.

State Police have appealed to the press and radio to assist in locating any relative of the Kirk family. Anyone having information regarding relatives is asked to notify Dover Plains State Police.

Assisting in the investigation at the scene was Dr. William G. Thompson of Rhinebeck, an assistant Dutchess county medical examiner.

Millerton Crash Fatal to Three

A spectacular headon collision of two cars on Route 22 near the Dutchess County community of Millerton, left three members of a Pawling family dead and two other persons injured Saturday night.

Dover Plains State Police recorded the dead as Robert Kirk, 59-year-old employe of the New York Central Railroad; his wife, Marie and their son, Robert, 32, all residents of 8 Gretenlawn Drive in Pawling.

Injured and reportedly in critical condition at the Sharon Hospital in Connecticut, is Vanness Baker, 31, of New Milford, Conn., operator of one of the vehicles. His wife, Marilyn, 33, suffered a compound fracture of the left ankle, broken nose, lacerations and cerebral condition. The hospital listed her condition as fair.

According to state police investigators the Kirk vehicle was traveling south on the Harlem Valley highway and Baker was driving north when his car reportedly entered the southbound lane and the headon collision resulted.

Kirk also was a free lance photographer, authorities said, in addition to his employment on the railroad.

State Police have appealed to the press and radio to assist in locating any relative of the Kirk family. Anyone having information regarding relatives is asked to notify Dover Plains State Police.

Assisting in the investigation at the scene was Dr. William G. Thompson of Rhinebeck, an assistant Dutchess county medical examiner.

Resnick Opens City Offices, Scores Eugene

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, flying into Port Ewen Saturday afternoon, took the occasion of his headquarters opening in Kingston to once again blast one of his Democratic opponents for the senatorial nomination, Eugene Nickerson.

Speaking to the gathering at the Stuyvesant Motor Inn, Resnick assailed the Nassau County executive for reneging on his moratorium on Vietnam discussion.

Resnick said he and Nickerson previously agreed to halt Southeast Asia war talk once peace negotiations were begun.

"He's trying to get out of the agreement, Resnick charged. First he renegs, then he reneges on a renege. To say you change your mind is one thing but to deny—This is another thing.

"Issues come and go but you have to stand behind your word."

Meanwhile, according to today's United Press International morning news release, Resnick, Nickerson and still another opponent, Paul O'Dwyer, have agreed to appear together in a television interview program June 9. Resnick however, insists he will not discuss Vietnam.

"When and if the subject comes up during the course of debate, I shall not participate."

Earlier this week WABC radio cancelled an appearance by the three candidates after Resnick insisted that all parties agreed not to talk about Vietnam.

Cottekill Fire Under Probe

A suspicious fire in Cottekill, which gutted the Four Corners Tavern Saturday night, is currently under investigation by the State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

The tavern, located on Cottekill Road and Lucas Avenue Extension received extensive fire damage but, because the establishment was closed at the time of the blaze, no injuries were involved.

Firefighters from Cottekill, Stone Ridge, High Falls and Binnewater fought for five and one half hours to contain and extinguish the fire.

The call was received at the Cottekill Fire Department at 11:01 p. m. Saturday and firemen battled until 4:30 a. m. Sunday.

During the height of the blaze, fire broke through the upstairs front section of the two story wood frame building.

Foam and water were used by the fire companies.

According to an official at the Cottekill Fire Company, there was evidence of a forced entry into the establishment with the change compartments of the pool table and the juke box showing signs of having been tampered with.

All through the fire, the Rosendale Fire Department was on standby call.

The tavern is owned by Norman Gaffney of Kingston. State Police officials claim that Gaffney closed the tavern at 8 p. m.

The fire allegedly began in the basement of the structure, then spread up the east and west walls.

A window in the side door of the establishment was broken, but it could not be ascertained whether this was done by a fireman or by a thief.

Four Killed In Plane Crash On Golf Course

GREENWICH, Conn. (UPI)—Four Connecticut men were killed Sunday night when their single engine plane crashed in a wooded area near a golf course in Greenwich and exploded in flames.

Police identified the four as John Faugno, 25, of Darien, and Thomas Uva, 36, Richard Wade, 20, and his stepfather, Phillip Bertucci, all of Stamford.

The plane had taken off just minutes before the crash from Westchester County Airport in White Plains, N.Y.

Police said the bodies were badly charred by the fire. The light Navion plane crashed about 100 yards from the third green of the Bruce Memorial golf course.

Case Put Over

Charged with petit larceny involving an alleged theft of merchandise at Caldor's on Saturday, Joanne Averill, 27, of 85 Abeel Street, pleaded innocent before Ulster Town Justice Sherwood E Davis and received an adjournment for hearing on Friday, May 31. Security Officer Herbert O'Brien who made the arrest with Deputy Sheriff Donald VanAken, reported the woman had a book worth $4.76 and a poison ivy spray valued at $1.98 in her handbag when she left the store.

Two of Quints Die

PAPATLATLA, Mexico (UPI)—The wife of a poor farmer gave birth Saturday to five girls. Doctors said Sunday night that two of the quintuplets died but the other three were "in good health."

Inoconcia Hernandez, 29, gave birth at the little town of Cruze de los Esteros in Verz Cruz state near Papatlatla. The children were taken to the municipal hospital of Poza Rica where two of them died.

South Yemen Having Its Political Problems

BEIRUT (UPI)—The People's Republic of South Yemen, which until independence last Dec. 1 was the British colony and protectorate of Aden, is having severe early birth pains, most of them political.

One source of trouble is Maoism—Chinese Communism—and a graver one is heightening friction with its neighbor, the Republic of Yemen. The Maoist challenge has at least for the present been dampened, if not defeated. But the Aden government's relations with the Yemen republic grow worse by the day.

Trouble between the neighboring republics was not long in starting when South Yemen passed new citizenship legislation that made their Yemeni allies aliens in the country they had actively helped establish by waging guerrilla war against the British.

The Law

The law states that a national of the Yemeni republic, residing in Aden, is considered an alien unless he applies for naturalization following five years continuous residence in the country.

Yemn resented this "discriminating" law—and said so.

In a sharply worded statement Yemen's minister of unity affairs, Abdo Othman, accused South Yemen of "reneging on past declarations about the equality of all nations, north and south."

Othman reminded the Aden government of the recent past when South Yemen's ruling (NLF) leaders were holed-up in Yemen, receiving full and unstinted support from the Yemeni government in their war against the British.

"We did not then consider Aden's future rulers aliens in Yemen," Othman said. "But now that they have seized power they at once begin shunning us."

There are other reasons, too, for the soured relations between the "twin" republics.

Soon after South Yemen's independence they established portfolios to coordinate moves toward eventual unity of the two countries. But things soon began to go wrong.

The ruling NLF in Aden protested to the Yemeni premier, Gen. Hasson Alamri, the continued presence and activity in Taez of the NLF's arch rival for power, the Front for the Liberation of Occupied South Yemen, (FLOSY), headed by Abdul Qawee Macakawee and Abdulla ASnag. FLOSY lost the battle for power to the NLF a few days before the British pulled out of Aden last year.

Independence did not change FLOSY's name or its aim, to liberate South Yemen from the NLF. It appeared—the NLF—to have the cautious and tacit approval of the Yemeni government.

FLOSY's armed guerrillas have played an active part in fighting against the Yemeni royalists, who have been trying for five years to topple the Yemeni republicans.

Form PRF

To counteract FLOSY's forces in Yemen the NLF sponsored and formed the "Popular Resistance forces" (PRF), ostensibly to fight alongside the republican regular forces against the royalists. The PRF immediately came under Yemeni suspicion as being basically loyal to the NLF regime in Aden and not to the government in power in Sanaa. After a bloody clash in Hodeidah Harbor the PRF were dissolved and scattered as they became illegal in Yemen.

Then came South Yemeni President Qatan Al Shaabi's charges that the Sanaa regime was harboring hostile forces (FLOSY) in Taez which he considered "an unfriendly act."

The Yemeni government described the charge as a figment of Shaabi's imagination and "fear psychosis."

SAUGERTIES NEWS

SAUGERTIES BEAUTIFICATION—The beautification-conservation program of the Village of Saugerties went into high gear this week with th planting of scores of flowering apple trees along the curbs of the business section. The planting was done by the Village Public Works Department under the direction of William Voerg, superintendant. Petunias are being planted around the base of each tree. The program also includes the replacement of diseased elms recently cut down in the residential sections of the village. Property owners may inquire about this planting at the village clerk's office. This scene is on Main Street looking east. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Teacher Contract Ratified By Saugerties School Board

Saugerties Central School Board of Education has ratified a contract with the Saugerties Teachers Association. Approval of the contract, already endorsed by the teacher membership came at a recent meeting of the board.

Upon recommendation of the superintendent of schools, Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, the following resignations were accepted: Robert Canterbury, Junior High School English; Garet Church, kidergarten teacher at the Main Street and Mt. Marion schools; Paul Larose, elementary physical education teacher; Harold Maynard, elementary teacher at the Morse School, Mrs. Mary Maynard elementary music teacher; Julio Tubal, elementary art teacher; Mrs. Graciela Zayas, junior-senior high Spanish teacher; and John Gilmour, senior high English teacher. All teacher resignations will become effective June 30.

The resignation of August Spader, custodian at the Mt. Marion School was also accepted, effective April 26, 1968.

Leaves of absence were granted to Mrs Dolores LaChance, elementary teacher at the Morse School and Mrs. Sharon Nye, elementary teacher at the Mt. Marion School, effective June 30.

The superintendent reported that 13 elementary and nine secondary positions have been filled to date and that there are still vacancies in 11 elementary and four secondary positions. There is a lack of candidates for kindergarten and primary grade positions.

The following appointments were approved:

David Baker, a resident of Kingston, and a graduate of State University College, New Paltz, will teach junior high science. Baker has had two years of teaching experience in New York State and served a period of time with the United States Army.

Dennis Brown, a recent graduate of Lebanon Valley College, will teach secondary music in the Saugerties Central Schools. He is a resident of Reading, Pa.

Miss Joanne Maurillo, a graduate of Saugerties High School and resident of Mt. Marion, will earn her BA degree at Post College. She will teach Spanish in the Junior-Senior High.

Miss Tanya Pyle, of Bernville, Pennsylvania, who earned her BS degree at Mansfield State College in Pennsylvania, will teach home economics during the coming year. Miss Pyle has had previous teaching experience in that field in Pennsylvania, where she served the Otto-Eldred Junior-Senior High School.

Mrs. Lani Robinson, formerly a teacher in Saugerties, is returning for the coming year as an English teacher. She earned her BS degree at Bryant College in Providence, R. I., and is completing graduate study at State University College, New Paltz. Mrs. Robinson is presently teaching at Warwick.

David Scoville, who will serve as a reading teacher, earned his BS at the University of Maine. In addition to completing graduate study at the University of Maine, State University College, Oswego, and Syracuse University, he has had four years of previous teaching experience. Scoville comes to Saugerties from Baldwinsville.

Mrs. Marilyn Short, who for several years has been very active as a substitute and regular teacher in the Saugerties Central schools, will serve as elementary teacher. Mrs. Short graduated from State University College, Oneonta, and makes her home in Saugerties.

Mrs. Patricia Tonzi, presently teaching in Syracuse, will teach in the elementary area. Mrs. Tonzi is a graduate of Saugerties Central Schools and earned her BS degree at State University College, Cortland.

SAUGERTIES BEAUTIFICATION—The beautification-conservation program of the Village of Saugerties went into high gear this week with th planting of scores of flowering apple trees along the curbs of the business section. The planting was done by the Village Public Works Department under the direction of William Voerg, superintendant. Petunias are being planted around the base of each tree. The program also includes the replacement of diseased elms recently cut down in the residential sections of the village. Property owners may inquire about this planting at the village clerk's office. American Marine Gives Reasons for Deserting Corps

By VIRGIL KRET

TOKYO (UPI)—"The United States must get out of Vietnam," said the young American Marine in an interview on Moscow television May 3.

His name is Joseph Louis Kmetz, 27, and he said New York was his home. He joined the Marine Corps 10 years ago and deserted it early in 1967 while on R & R (rest and recreation) leave in Tokyo, from Vietnam.

Now here he was, with five other American deserters, spouting the Communist line about Vietnam over Russian television—" could not put up with the thought—I was one of these maiming children."

Different Reasons

The reasons he gave me for his desertion, when I had a long talk with him in a Tokyo bar one February afternoon, were quite different.

The Joe Kmetz who poured his story out to me over a steady succession of beers seemed the most unhappy and desperate person I've ever known.

My involvement with Joe began when a Japanese friend phoned me at the UPI office and said, "Please come over right away. There's an American soldier here who has to talk to someone. He wants to go to Sweden."

When I finished my work I headed for the bar across town. I thought of other deserts I'd seen and pictured this one as probably an earnest, crewcut young fellow, possibly on the scholarly side, who would spout to me his ideological reasons for deserting.

Joe Kmetz wasn't like that at all.

What he might once have been like I don't know .I found him bleary-eyed, drunk, almost incoherent and very frightened.

He had been living in one room since he had gone AWOL (Absent without leave) 16 months earlier, he told me. I was only the second American he had seen in all that time. He had been living in hiding with a one-eyed Japanese woman, 10 years his senior, the entire time —doing little but getting drunk on Suntory Red, a cheap Japanese whiskey.

Looked Older

Joe looked much, much older than his 27 years. His skin was colorless, his eyes watery and weak looking, his hands shook. He trusted no one, he said, except the woman he called his wife.

He found it difficult to speak, and when he did he spoke his native English like a Japanese bar girl. He pronounced "wife" as "wifu," "house" as "housu," "Vietnam" as "Vietnamu."

The first thing he said to me when I approached him was, "you M.P.?" (military policeman). His words were almost a croak. It was a question he came back to again and again while we talked and drank beer.

What he wanted from me was advice as to what he should do. He had been in touch with the Japan Peace for Vietnam committee (Beheiren), which helps American GI deserters get to Europe.

I asked why he had deserted. Because, he said, he was "fed up" with the Marine Corps. He had been a corporal and "busted" to private first class and he thought he had been busted unfairly. He had gone AWOL while on R & R, was caught and put on a plane for Vietnam where—although he had not been in combat—he served with the 1st Marine Air Wing. Enroute, the plane stopped at Okinawa and Joe managed to slip aboard another plane back to Tokyo. He'd been hiding ever since.

No Hope

He saw no hope for himself, he said. The Marine Cops would put him in jail for years—in "the monkey housu." He'd been there before, he said, and would not go back.

I told him he should get himself a lawyer, if he thought he had any case at all, and turn himself in.

"Never happen! Never happen!" he said. "They'll put me in the monkey housu until I'm an old man."

He asked did I know how he might get to Sweden. I told him I didn't think he ever could be happy or feel free even if he got there and urged him again to give himself up.

"Won't be happy in the monkey housu, either," Kmetz said, "Maybe in Sweden I can start a new life."

I told him if he sought help from the peace committee he probably would travel to Sweden via Russia and would be used for propaganda purposes.

"I don't want that," he said. "I'm an American and proud of it. But if that's the only chance. I'll take it."

The young Japanese who worked at the bar and had phoned me then put in a call to the Beheiren headquarters. In a little while a member of the organization came, talked with Joe, and went off with him.

That was the last I saw or heard of Joe Kmetz until he spoke his piece on Moscow television.

Girl Scouts Complete Training

The four delegates and two alternates selected to represent Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts at the Hendrik Hudson Senior Roundup are completing their training for the event with a series of outdoor sessions culminating in a weekend of training at Is-Sho-Da, Hudson Valley Girl Scout camp in East Greenbush May 31—June 2.

Girl selected to attend the event from Ulster County Council are Sue Brooks, Highland; and alternates, Cathee Fisher, Glenford, and Helen Turck, Bearsville.

Placing and care of tents, storm lashing, charcoal cookery, marking and packing of patrol equipment and personal gear—all skills necessary for Roundup are being practiced in cooperation with Hudson Valley Senior Scouts who comprise the rest of the patrol.

Adults from the local council who have been acting as training consultants for the Roundup are; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hill, Kingston; Mrs. Elston North, Jr., Hurley; Mrs. Pat DiSalvo, Woodstock and Miss Anne Lummis, camping administrator for the Ulster County Council. Mrs. George Erbstein is chairman of the selections committee.

The Hendrik Hudson Roundup will be held at Camp Drum, near Watertown July 18 to 29. Here, approximately 750 Senior Scouts from New York, New Jersey, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, plus two Senior Scouts from each of the other Girl Scout Regions, and two patrols of Girl Guides from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec — a total of 96 patrols—will gather for 12 days of camping in one of New York States Historic areas where the joy and challenge of living and working together will help them develop resourcefulness, self-direction and adaptability.

Director of Roundup will be Miss Frances Plummer, of Albany. Miss Plummer served as a camp director for the 1962 Roundup in Vermont, and as a project and unit leader at the Tennessee All-States Encampment in 1963. In 1965 she was staff advisor for the Backup Bivouac held at Camp Drum for alternates to the 1965 Senior Roundup. She is a member of the Hudson Valley Girl Scout Council where she serves as a director of Program Services.

Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts which is cooperating in this Region II Roundup is a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest.

Too Good

ATWOOD, Tenn. (AP) — This town of 750 was mighty proud of the new $85,000 water system—but then the pumps wouldn't work.

An engineer discovered that the water was so pure it wouldn't conduct the electricity necessary to make the pumps go.

New and special electrodes were installed, and now the folks have all the pure water they need.

Paltz Prof Continues Fast

Roger Knapp, the State University College at New Paltz instructor who, until Friday, had locked himself in a room in the college's main building to protest the lack of student participation in administration affairs, continues on a hunger strike today.

Knapp has not eaten solid food since Monday afternoon in a one-man effort to, in his words, "precipitate tension" for the purpose of getting students involved in the decision making process of hiring and retaining college professors.

On Friday night, a 10-member commission, including five faculty members and five students, was set up for the purpose of advising the college administration in the hiring-retaining controversy.

It has been learned, however, that Knapp wants the students to decide his own fate.

Knapp had been informed that he would not be rehired.

The 34-year-old instructor of area studies is presently under observation at the Student Health Center and is taking bicarbonate of soda and ginger ale. He refused food and medication.

The student faculty commission is reportedly meeting on the Knapp case.

In related events, Ray Gould, editor of the college newspaper, The Oracle, claimed that an opinion poll taken among students shows that the students overwhelmingly support the idea of the student-faculty commission deciding the fate of college professors and instructors.

Of 341 students polled, representing approximately 10 per cent of the student body, 219 favored the commission ruling on the hiring and retaining of instructors. Only 19 students favored administration decisions on the matter.

Also, 260 students favored new student elections in the fall, with 44 opposed and 36 undecided.

As for what government the students favor, 89 favor the radical Free Student Government, 80 are for the present Student Government Association, 68 are for neither organization, and 105 are currently undecided.

Patrolman, Woman Hurt In City Crash

A Kingston patrolman and a 56-year-old woman were injured Saturday night when the cars in which they were riding collided at the intersection of Sterling and Cedar Streets, according to police who cited a Putnam county woman.

Patrolman Edward J. Ortlieb, 31, of 37 Arlmont Street, was taken to Kingston Hospital and treated for injuries of the skull and left ribs. Police reports showed that Irene N. Treadway, 23, of Putnam Station, was driving a 1967 car south on Sterling Street and entered the intersection where it was in collision with Ortlieb's 1962 suburban, which was eastbound on Cedar Street.

Mrs. Dorothy Treadway, of 61 West O'Reilly Street, was treated at Kingston hospital for a bump on the head. The Putnam Station woman was summoned to appear in City court to face a charge of passing a stop sign.

Weekend Fires

Fire companies in several county communities were called out to quell a variety of minor fires over the weekend. On Saturday, Shokan volunteers extinguished a mattress fire, New Paltz firemen quelled fire in a car, Shandaken companies responded to a call after a hot water heater overheated, Port Ewen checked a car fire, Highland volunteers responded to an alarm for a grass blaze, New Paltz firemen also checked a minor fire in a residence and Marlboro firefighters recorded a trailer blaze. At 6:42 p. m. Sunday Accord firemen responded to a call for a house fire, which was extinguished in less than 20 minutes, and this morning West Shokan volunteers put out fire in an automobile. All the fires were logged by dispatchers at the county fire control center.

Gorman Clears the Way For '68 Endorsements

Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, Ulster Democratic leader, announced today that resolutions in support of the several Democratic candidates for president would be the first order of business at the regular meeting of the Ulster County Democratic committee at the White Eagle Hall, Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Gorman made it clear that he was opposed to such endorsements pending the election of delegates to the National Democratic Convention in the June 18 primary. He said that the enrolled Democratic voters were entitled to make their own endorsement, and the committee should support the people's choice. The responsibility for any embarrassing consequences to the committee as a result of the adoption of any resolutions rests with the proponents.

Dr. Gorman reiterated that all previous attempts to endorse presidential candidates before the slate was complete were not only improper and unnecessarily divisive, but unfair to unannounced candidates at the time they were made. However, now that all of the candidates have tossed their hats into the ring, he acknowledged that these motions were in order at a regular meeting, regardless of the consequences.

Dr. Gorman said he personally would support a resolution similar to that adopted by the Kingston City Democratic Committee at its regular meeting last Thursday to support the candidate nominated at the national convention as the standard bearer of the Democratic Party.

Paltz Prof Continues Fast

Roger Knapp, the State University College at New Paltz instructor who, until Friday, had locked himself in a room in the college's main building to protest the lack of student participation in administration affairs, continues on a hunger strike today.

Knapp has not eaten solid food since Monday afternoon in a one-man effort to, in his words, "precipitate tension" for the purpose of getting students involved in the decision making process of hiring and retaining college professors.

On Friday night, a 10-member commission, including five faculty members and five students, was set up for the purpose of advising the college administration in the hiring-retaining controversy.

It has been learned, however, that Knapp wants the students to decide his own fate.

Knapp had been informed that he would not be rehired.

The 34-year-old instructor of area studies is presently under observation at the Student Health Center and is taking bicarbonate of soda and ginger ale. He refused food and medication.

The student faculty commission is reportedly meeting on the Knapp case.

In related events, Ray Gould, editor of the college newspaper, The Oracle, claimed that an opinion poll taken among students shows that the students overwhelmingly support the idea of the student-faculty commission deciding the fate of college professors and instructors.

Of 341 students polled, representing approximately 10 per cent of the student body, 219 favored the commission ruling on the hiring and retaining of instructors. Only 19 students favored administration decisions on the matter.

Also, 260 students favored new student elections in the fall, with 44 opposed and 36 undecided.

As for what government the students favor, 89 favor the radical Free Student Government, 80 are for the present Student Government Association, 68 are for neither organization, and 105 are currently undecided.

Patrolman, Woman Hurt In City Crash

A Kingston patrolman and a 56-year-old woman were injured Saturday night when the cars in which they were riding collided at the intersection of Sterling and Cedar Streets, according to police who cited a Putnam county woman.

Patrolman Edward J. Ortlieb, 31, of 37 Arlmont Street, was taken to Kingston Hospital and treated for injuries of the skull and left ribs. Police reports showed that Irene N. Treadway, 23, of Putnam Station, was driving a 1967 car south on Sterling Street and entered the intersection where it was in collision with Ortlieb's 1962 suburban, which was eastbound on Cedar Street.

Mrs. Dorothy Treadway, of 61 West O'Reilly Street, was treated at Kingston hospital for a bump on the head. The Putnam Station woman was summoned to appear in City court to face a charge of passing a stop sign.

Weekend Fires

Fire companies in several county communities were called out to quell a variety of minor fires over the weekend. On Saturday, Shokan volunteers extinguished a mattress fire, New Paltz firemen quelled fire in a car, Shandaken companies responded to a call after a hot water heater overheated, Port Ewen checked a car fire, Highland volunteers responded to an alarm for a grass blaze, New Paltz firemen also checked a minor fire in a residence and Marlboro firefighters recorded a trailer blaze. At 6:42 p. m. Sunday Accord firemen responded to a call for a house fire, which was extinguished in less than 20 minutes, and this morning West Shokan volunteers put out fire in an automobile. All the fires were logged by dispatchers at the county fire control center.

Gorman Clears the Way For '68 Endorsements

Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, Ulster Democratic leader, announced today that resolutions in support of the several Democratic candidates for president would be the first order of business at the regular meeting of the Ulster County Democratic committee at the White Eagle Hall, Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. Gorman made it clear that he was opposed to such endorsements pending the election of delegates to the National Democratic Convention in the June 18 primary. He said that the enrolled Democratic voters were entitled to make their own endorsement, and the committee should support the people's choice. The responsibility for any embarrassing consequences to the committee as a result of the adoption of any resolutions rests with the proponents.

Dr. Gorman reiterated that all previous attempts to endorse presidential candidates before the slate was complete were not only improper and unnecessarily divisive, but unfair to unannounced candidates at the time they were made. However, now that all of the candidates have tossed their hats into the ring, he acknowledged that these motions were in order at a regular meeting, regardless of the consequences.

Dr. Gorman said he personally would support a resolution similar to that adopted by the Kingston City Democratic Committee at its regular meeting last Thursday to support the candidate nominated at the national convention as the standard bearer of the Democratic Party.

For 3 Who Waved Desperately

Last Hazardous Flight Was Unforgettable

By GEORGE McARTHUR

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Fire and smoke wreathed the Special Forces camp and the Viet Cong flag whipped from the old command bunker when the radio crackled that three Americans were still down there.

An old C123 twin-engine Provider lowered through the battle haze and gingerly touched down on the debris-strewn airstrip. The crew found no one but on the take off run spotted three men waving desperately. The plan was going too fast, however, and was too low on fuel for another run.

Circling at 8,000 feet, a ruddy-faced, 45-year-old pilot listened to the radio. He snapped on his intercom and told his crew: "We're going in."

So began the last hazardous flight into Kham Duc, a mountain-ringed Green Berets' out post some 45 miles southwest of Da Nang. Helicopters, four-engine Hercules turboprops and the smaller twin-engine Providers had already lifted out about 800 Americans, villagers and tribal irregulars. No one was supposed to be left.

The airstrip was littered with craters and the debris of destroyed helicopters. All day the evacuation transports had been taking hits. Enemy gunners shot down one Hercules. Now, in the afternoon, the fire grew heavier as two North Vietnamese regiments closed in on the jungle encampment.

Lt. Col. Joe Jackson, a one-time newspaper boy from Newman, Ga., who recalls former Gov. Ellis Arnall as a customer, put the old transport plane in a near dive.

It should have been a routine check flight. As commander of the 113th Air Commando Squadron, Jackson normally doesn't fly much. This day he had arranged a flight with a check pilot, Maj. William Campbell, 37, Atascadero, Calif., as his copilot.

Jackson was taking a periodic flight check when his C123 was ordered over embattled Khan Duc.

The idea was to get down quickly to avoid antiaircraft fire and at the same time to pull up and land slowly. He had to stop on the runway without having to reverse his engines. It is normally a technical point, but reversing the engines cuts off the auxiliary jet pods beneath the Provider's wings. Starting those pod engines would take 40 long seconds. Jackson knew they might not have 40 seconds and he wanted that extra power for the take off under fire.

"I knew things were bad on the ground. You could see it," Jackson says. "We didn't have any trouble finding the base, it was all on fire. From the time we came in range, they opened up, firing from the bunkers and from below us as we approached."

"God, look at all those machine guns," yelled copilot Campbell.

Jackson threaded the plane down the runway while Campbell and two crew members scanned the smoldering fortifications for the three Americans. Near the end of the airstrip, the three ran out — an Air Force officer in a blue flight suit and two enlisted men in camouflaged fatigues. They were members of the Air Force combat control team that normally ran the control tower at the small post. How they got left behind, no one knew.

"As soon as they jumped on board, the loadmaster yelled 'on board, clear to go' and we sure went," Jackson recalls. "We got out of there without a hole in the plane. I'll never understand it." The official record shows that Jackson's plane was on the ground no more than 120 seconds.

"That was eternity," Jackson says.

The idea was to get down quickly to avoid antiaircraft fire and at the same time to pull up and land slowly. He had to stop on the runway without having to reverse his engines. It is normally a technical point, but reversing the engines cuts off the auxiliary jet pods beneath the Provider's wings. Starting those pod engines would take 40 long seconds. Jackson knew they might not have 40 seconds and he wanted that extra power for the take off under fire.

"I knew things were bad on the ground. You could see it," Jackson says. "We didn't have any trouble finding the base, it was all on fire. From the time we came in range, they opened up, firing from the bunkers and from below us as we approached."

"God, look at all those machine guns," yelled copilot Campbell.

Jackson threaded the plane down the runway while Campbell and two crew members scanned the smoldering fortifications for the three Americans. Near the end of the airstrip, the three ran out — an Air Force officer in a blue flight suit and two enlisted men in camouflaged fatigues. They were members of the Air Force combat control team that normally ran the control tower at the small post. How they got left behind, no one knew.

"As soon as they jumped on board, the loadmaster yelled 'on board, clear to go' and we sure went," Jackson recalls. "We got out of there without a hole in the plane. I'll never understand it." The official record shows that Jackson's plane was on the ground no more than 120 seconds.

"That was eternity," Jackson says.

Their War, and Not Quite Theirs

The Negro Soldier Speaks Out on the Viet Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Negro soldier in Vietnam speaks:

"This is no man's war and certainly not a colored man's. When people can't live together back home, I can't see coming over here fighting."

Another Negro soldier speaks:

"I'm sick of it. They say we're fighting to free the people of South Vietnam. But Newark wasn't free. Was Watts? Was Detroit? I mean, which is more important, home or here?"

And another:

"I'm an American citizen first. It's the only country, the only life I know. I can't turn my back on it, even though I know it's been wrong many times, particularly about colored people. I feel I have a sense of responsibility and I'll stick with my country."

Two-Month Survey

For two months, Paul Hathaway, a staff writer for the Washington Evening Star, talked to Negro soldiers in Vietnam and to Negro veterans who had returned home. The quotations above and the observations that follow came from the five articles published by the Star.

"For most Negro soldiers in Vietnam it is not a case of 'My Country, Right or Wrong,' but 'My Country, Right and Wrong,'" Hathaway, a Negro, wrote in the last of the articles, copyrighted by the Star.

"They see America as a land of cruel paradoxes, conflicting commitments and shifting priorities. They see the war as theirs and not yet quite theirs, and democracy as something that is in their presence, yet not within their grasp.

To many Negro soldiers who see their lives threatened by war the Vietnamese are not so much people as obstructions that must be overcome, Hathaway reported. They consider them people who refuse to help themselves, who should be able to lift themselves by their own bootstraps without American help.

Unconfirmed stories circulate among Negro soldiers in which the enemy treats the Negro either as a friend or as a neutral party.

"Man, I hear the gooks got these seven soldiers and they killed all six whites and they let this one blood (Negro) go," Hathaway quoted one Negro as saying.

These stories, Hathaway added, are made more believable by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese leaflets aimed at American troops which address the Negro soldier:

'Being Used'

'Black man, why are you fighting here? We don't want to fight you. Your war is against the white man back home."

A Marine private in Dong Ha said he thought the Negro death rate in Vietnam was as high as 60 per cent.

"I think we're being killed off," he said. "I think we're being used. That's what."

Defense Department figures show the percentage of Negroes killed in Vietnam is slightly higher than for whites, a statistic the Pentagon attributes to the higher percentage of Negroes in elite volunteer combat units and the high percentage of noncommissioned officers among Negro soldiers.

There were 56,000 Negroes in the armed forces in Vietnam on Jan. 1, 1968, 9.8 per cent of the total fighting force. Negro deaths in combat during the six years prior to Jan. 1 were 14.1 per cent of total U.S. deaths.

Many Negro soldiers attribute their negative attitude toward the war to the situation at home, not on the war itself.

"It seemed like when the rioting broke out back home, they felt that they had something more important to do in The World (the United States)," said Marine Pfc. Richard L. Gray Jr., Fairmont, W.Va., in Phu Bai. "It seemed like they wanted to be back there kicking somebody, too."

Critical of Stories

As a group of five Negro soldiers sat around a mess table nodding agreement, Army Spec. 4 William F. Washington, Los Angeles criticized stories he had read about harmony between Negro and white on the battlefield.

"All this talk about integration in the foxhole," Washington said. "Well, why not? Why not? You cover his hide and he covers yours. That's how you survive.

"But you see, that doesn't mean that he's going to treat you any different when he gets back in The World. It's just that you need each other more now."

. . . Then Separate Ways

It was that way in Nha Trang, he said. The whites talked with them, worked with them. But when it came downtown to the bars and to the women, they went separate ways.

To Marine Cpl. Hosea Dyson, Chicago, being black is irrelevant in a war, there are only those who gain glory in fighting for a cause they believe in.

"I'm an American citizen first. It's the only country, the only life I know. I can't turn my back on it. . ."

"Once when a white soldier left my squad," said Dyson, "he shook my hand and told me he'd been proud to be in the same foxhole with me. It made me feel good, so good. I would have felt good if a Negro had said it, but it struck me that someone white should do it."

And after the war? "I think war changes men," Dyson said. "It will make a difference when we get back. Out here, they see us as people. Before, you were just a shadow or something. Now they know you."

In Pleiku, Airborne Spec. 4 Lawrence Harkless, a former policeman in Watts, spoke of the large number of Negroes who join elite groups such as the airborne.

It's a Challenge

"We join because of pride and the $55 extra a month," he said. "It's a challenge. The brother likes the challenge. We're tough and we want everybody to know it. When I get home, I don't want anyone to mess with me in the block. Because I'm a man. If they never noticed before, they better notice now."

And once the Negro gets out of the service. Then what?

"If he does not have an education, a high school diploma or something, then he is damn near unemployable," said Costel N. Akrie, San Francisco, one of nine veterans' affairs coordinators working for the Urban League. "Despite his youth, he is the same as the uneducated guy in World War II or the Korean War. He's at a dead end. The kid comes back from Vietnam. He sees black veterans from other wars fighting the same problems and he asks himself, 'Is this going to happen to me?'"

Many Negroes had service responsibilities—antiaircraft technician, demolition expert or rifleman—that do not lend themselves to civilian life.

"They tell us we need college degrees," Akrie said, "but there are few Negroes that have them. They will require a bachelor's degree from a Negro for a particular kind of job, but a high school diploma from a white veteran."

More Negroes than whites take advantage of various GI education and vocational training programs—53 per cent compared to 45 per cent. Government figures also show that for the Negro ex-serviceman the median family income is $4,557. For families headed by a Negro who is not a veteran, the median income is $3,610.

Order Inventory Of All Cigarettes

State Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy today announced that all cigarette dealers in New York State—including retailers, sub-jobbers, vending machine operators, chain stores, wholesalers and manufacturers — must take a physical inventory of cigarettes on hand at the close of business on May 31 preparatory to paying the additional tax of 2 cents a pack.

The order to take inventory was issued by Tax Commission regulation and must be complied with before the increase in the New York State cigarette tax from 10 cents to 12 cents per pack becomes effective June 1.

In the case of jobbers and manufacturers, the inventory must include unstamped stock, New York State stamped stock and New York City and State joint stamped stock.

After taking the required inventory, every dealer, including jobbers acting as agents to affix cigarette tax stamps, must file a Floor Tax Return and pay a tax of 2 cents for each package of 20 cigarette on had and stamped at the old 10-cent rate with State or joint State-New York City tax stamps.

All available tax examiners, investigators and inspectors of the Tax Department throughout the State will be utilized in the field beginning May 27 to help distribute and assist members of the tobacco industry in preparing their Floor Tax Returns.

The forms for the Floor Tax Returns may be obtained from cigarette wholesalers, all New York State District Tax Offices, various banks which act as fiscal or sub-fiscal cigarette agents, or tobacco dealer associations.

The Floor Tax Returns and remittance, made payable to the New York State Tax Commission, must be filed on or before June 20, 1968, with the Miscellaneous Tax Bureau, Building 9, State Campus, Albany.

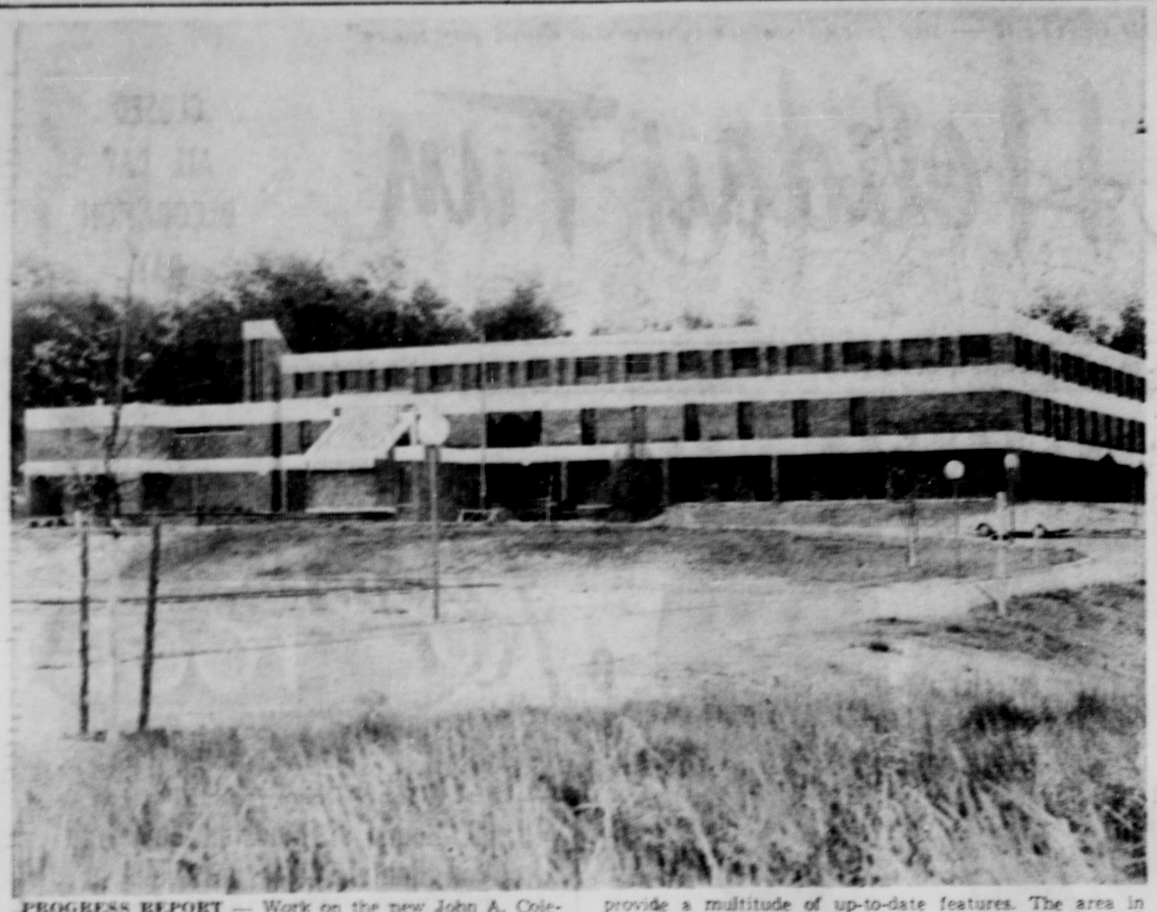
Moving Day Getting Closer For J.A. Coleman School



PROGRESS REPORT — Work on the new John A. Coleman Catholic High School on Hurley Avenue Extension is "98 per cent" completed and preparations are being made for fall occupancy. The three-level educational complex will provide a multitude of up-to-date features. The area in front of the school will be used as a soccer and baseball field. (Freeman photo by Haines).

It soon will be moving day for John A. Coleman Catholic High School.

98 Pct. Completed

With the new building on Hurley Avenue Extension "98 per cent completed" Sister Mary Gerald, principal, said things look promising for early summer moving date, hopefully by July 1.

At any rate, doors of the modern brick structure will swing wide for fall classes. More than 400 students are expected to attend the new co-educational Catholic high school in September.

No date has been set for the formal dedication but it is assured that Archbishop Terence J. Cooke will be on hand for the event. As vicar general and auxiliary bishop of the Archdiocese, His Eminence participated in the groundbreaking ceremonies Dec. 31, 1966. On his recent visit to Ulster County as newly designated head of the Archdiocese of New York, Archbishop Cooke promised to return for the formal dedication of the completed school.

The three level, 100,000 square feet of high school and athletic field will provide a modern educational complex complete with air conditioning and carpeted classrooms, halls and library. The campus will include soccer and baseball fields as well as track and field areas.

Features of the $3,000,000 school will include a student chapel, gymnatorium, cafeteria-student center, music suite, large group instruction center, book store, snack bar and administrative and storage areas. In addition to modern laboratories and other school facilities, the building will house the teaching sisters and provide a chapel for their use.

Students are currently attending classes at the former Academy of St. Ursula on Grove Street. The coeducational high school came into being in 1966 when boys were enrolled at the former all girl school and the name was officially changed to John A. Coleman Catholic High School.

Warwick Construction Company of Warwick is the building firm. Architects are Paver & Wildfoerster of Middletown.

Red Hook Recreation Park Drive Realizes $12,000

Red Hook's Recreational Park Drive is in full swing with $12,000 realized during the first two weeks of the fund campaign.

The drive for pool funds began May 1 with $5,000 in advance subscriptions and donations. In addition $3,000 and $4,000 were received for the first and second week respectively.

Eighty three-year family subscriptions comprise the main source of revenue.

The drive toward the $75,000 goal, which is being conducted by 200 volunteers, will conclude June 15.

The $100 three-year and $50 one-year family subscription plans are charter subscription rates which will be in effect only during the drive. An increase of 10 per cent is expected on June 16.

Park plans for Memorial Day have been announced. Starting at 9 a.m., with time out for the parade, the days activities will include races, games and events.

In the morning races will be held for children up to the age of 16. Spectators are invited and parking will be provided on the park grounds.

Afternoon attractions include picnic facilities at the recreation barn, horseshoe pitching, tug-o-war, pony rides, volley and softball games and a children's fishing contest.

Ribbons will be awarded to race winners at 3 p.m. and a teenage dance is planned for 5 p.m. and will continue until 9.

In case of rain as many events as possible will be staged in the barn.

Among those working on the fund drive, with Daniel R. Hoch as chairman are: Cy E. Theberge, James Maher, John Colburn, William G. Taylor, J. John Hautmann, Norman E. Thomson, Mrs. Donald C. Lancto, G. Carl Pack, James E. Holiday and Fred C. Schultz.

State's Urban Development Projects Will Have State-Wide Applicability

Projects undertaken by the New York State Urban Development Corporation will have state-wide applicability, rather than limitation to New York City, it was predicted today by State Housing Commissioner James William Gaynor.

In a speech delivered at a luncheon meeting of the annual spring conference of the New York State Association of Urban Renewal Officials in Ellenville, Commissioner Gaynor, seeking to dispel some of the myths that have developed about the newly created corporation, termed as myth number one the belief that the corporation will function only in New York City.

"The corporation was never intended solely for New York City and our own belief is that, just as the state has contributed more to urban renewal upstate than in New York City, the corporation may be able to do more for upstate municipalities than for New York City," Commissioner Gaynor said.

Among some of the other myths cited by the commissioner were that the corporation would become a substitute for the present federal-state-local urban renewal program; that the corporation would bail out any urban renewal area which has been unable to obtain a redeveloper; that the corporation would have available $6 billion in state money; and that no local expense would be involved in undertakings of the corporation.

In addition to the Urban Development Corporation, Commissioner Gaynor also discussed other pieces of legislation enacted during the current legislative session that could assist urban renewal officials in the exercise of their responsibilities. Of special significance is the new legislation providing for the preparation of a State Building Conservation and Fire Prevention Code.

The new code, consisting of three separate codes, will be promulgated by the State Building Code Council, and will establish standards for maintenance of existing structures and for fire safety. Since the code will consist of three individual codes (the first setting forth standards for the maintenance of existing structures; the second setting standards for industrial, commercial and public use structures; the third relating primarily to setting standards for protection against loss of life or property from fire, explosion or toxic gases), municipalities will have the option of being able to adopt by reference any one or more of the three portions of the code without adopting the entire code.

Codes of the type included in the new Building Conservation and Fire Prevention Code must be adopted by municipalities as part of a workable program to qualify for federal and state urban renewal financial assistance. The new codes will be made available by the state at no cost to the municipality.

Capsule Scientists

VERNAL, Utah (AP) — Three young science students stepped into the fresh night air Sunday after spending 100 hours sealed inside a stuffy space capsule mockup with only dehydrated food to eat.

The boys, all seventh graders aged 14, said their knees were wobbly from being confined so long. A physician pronounced them in good health after more than four days tucked in the capsule.

The endurance experiment was begun by a special science class. Students Terry Johnson, Bert Merkeley and Michael Herrington entered the aluminum capsule at 4 p.m. Wednesday following school. They got out at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Ten and Twenty Years Ago

May 27, 1948 — An escort control ship and a landing craft of the U.S. Navy were due to visit the city on Memorial Day.

Articles made in the industrial arts and vocational classes at the high school were exhibited at the chamber of commerce office in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

May 27, 1958 — Congressman J. Ernest Wharton of Richmondville is the choice of the 29th Congressional District Republican Committee to succeed himself. Chairman for the committee was Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson of Woodstock in a meeting that was held in Poughkeepsie's Nelson House.

Officers and directors of the Uptown Businessmen's Association were elected at a breakfast meeting in the Kingston Hotel this morning with Stanley London being elected president to succeed Joseph Scholar, Jr.

115 Million to Take to Roads

NEW YORK (UPI)—An estimated 115 million Americans are expected to take to the nation's highways and byways in 1968 to see the U.S.A.

The prediction is good news to the domestic travel industry but not to the men and women who are worried about the ravages of the unthinking or the deliberate litterbug.

Auto travelers are the major source of the trash which mars the fruited plains, the majestic purple mountains, the forests, the deserts and other scenic beauties of the United States, according to Keep America Beautiful, Inc., the national litter-prevention organization formed 15 years ago.

A recent survey by KAB showed that about 65 per cent of the nation's litter fighters reported trash tossed from moving automobiles is the greatest menace outside populated areas.

The reason is given for the greater incidence of littering by auto travelers was best summed up by a Missouri litter fighter who said "occupants of moving cars seem to feel that since they will not be in the area long it is okay to discard their trash." In the same vein, an expert from Minnesota reported "the anonymity of the auto contributes to the problem."

Allen H. Seed Jr., executive vice president of the non-profit KAB, said educational programs have been intensified, added facilities for the disposal of litter are being provided and there are signs of more active enforcement of anti-littering laws.

In a national sampling of persons active in the anti-litter campaign about 90 per cent reported acceleration of prevention activities in their states. The same percentage reported that public awareness of he littler problem also appears to be increasing.

This is reflected in the number of statewide organizations now actively conducting programs to stamp out the litterbug. Seed said such organizations, are operating in 35 states today. There was none when the KAB was formed in 1953.

Highway officials have responded to the growing concern over the blight of litter by providing more facilities along roads for the disposal of trash. A KAB check showed that all 50 states now have little baskets along major highways and more than half have posted signs indicating the distance to the nearest container.

Wash-In Strip

LONDON (AP) — Twenty students peeled off their blue jeans and miniskirts Sunday in an attempt to bring friendship to a British laundromat, but police were unfriendly to the demonstrators.

The students stripped to their underwear and put their clothes in the washing machines. Girls wrapped themselves in towels and football sweaters.

"Launderettes are such dreary places," explained the leader of the wash-in, Nick Flowerdew, as he shivered in his bright red drawers. "Everyone just watches his washing going round and never speaks to anyone else. They should be friendly."

Six policemen broke up the demonstration.

List Some Do's and Don'ts

By DAVID W. CHUTE

DETROIT (UPI)—Everyone who gets behind the wheel of a car and makes it move can call himself a motorist. Or a motor vehicle operator.

But not everyone who runs a car is a driver.

Driving means keeping the car under full and correct control at all times—not just stepping on the gas and steering.

Experts in driving claim it is not an art to be learned from a book of rules, or even, necessarily, by piling up driving miles and hours and calling it experience.

A lot of "experienced" drivers just keep doing the wrong things all the time.

The real lessons to be learned from driving may be learned too late—too late, sometimes, to keep the driver alive.

So much of good driving is common sense that even the experts cannot lay down an all-inclusive list of do's and don'ts for staying alive on the road, or uninjured. But there are some broad rules that apply.

For example, the driver who finds it necessary to brake hard on a turn is driving badly. Hard braking may cause the car to veer, even if only ever so slightly. This can point the car into the opposite lane, or start it into a skid and, perhaps, bring loss of control.

The good driver, the experts say, never goes into a turn at a speed faster than the car or the run can take, safely. This is a matter of judgment; it requires thinking-ahead to that turn.

If, in spite of everything, hard braking is necessary on a turn, then the next "must" is that the wheels be kept prefectly straight. Really good drivers can keep all four wheels of a car pointed straight even if they are locked on a wet pavement.

In a sway or skid, the rear wheels can break away and throw the car out of control—unless the driver knows what to do. One of the "what to do's" may involve stepping on the accelerator, if done correctly and under proper conditions.

For Family Courts

Recent Supreme Court Decisions Seen Beneficial

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's 2,600 juvenile courts, thrown into turmoil by recent Supreme Court decisions, may eventually develop into more efficient, comprehensive "family" courts.

This hope was voiced by an expert in the field, the Rev. Robert F. Drinan, dean of Boston College Law School, at a two-day institute here on "The Changing World of Juvenile Law" sponsored by an American Bar Association (ABA) group.

The speeches and questions by professional people from 30 states, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Canada revealed that juvenile courts, long the neglected step-children of the American judicial system, are up against a staggering complex of problems.

More Serious

The more serious include new attitudes toward the delinquent child, the need to afford him certain constitutional protections, a shortage of lawyers to represent him, lack of competent judges and a terrifying increase in juvenile crime.

The kind of family or domestic relations court envisioned by Drinan would treat a wide range of personal problems including divorce, separate maintenance, non-support, adoptions and family offenses. In the course of judging a divorce, the court would be obliged to protect the rights of the couple's children.

Drinan said the ABA's family law section, which arranged the institute, is working toward this goal. He is the immediate past president of the section.

Hawaii recently established a family court system. They also operate in New York and Rhode Island and in some city jurisdictions, notably Detroit and Milwaukee.

The Boston dean rested part of his hope on a model juvenile court law presented by Judge Eugene A. Burdick of the district court in Williston, N.D. The draft will be urged on all state legislatures if it is approved by the ABA's policy-making house of delegates at its annual meeting in Philadelphia in August.

"I hope it is the forerunner of a unified, integrated family court," Drinan said.

Bleak Picture

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark sketches a bleak picture of juvenile crime. Although adult crime probably has not increased in this decade, he said, youthful crime has increased more than 60 per cent. In 1966, adult crime was down 1 per cent and youth crime up 9 per cent.

Children between 11 and 17 commit 64 per cent of all car thefts and 50 per cent of the two other most frequent crimes against property—burglary and larceny. Minors commit half of all property crimes.

What kind of courts deal with these offenders? One fifth of the judges are not lawyers. In fact, one fifth have no college education at all. Half have no undergraduate degree. Three-fifths spend less than 25 per cent of their time on juvenile cases. Hearings last from 5 to 15 minutes. Eighty-three per cent of the judges have no access to any psychological or psychiatric help. One-third have no access to any type of case worker.

"What can we expect?" the attorney general asked. "Until we have the resources and until we have the commitment, we'll never get the job done.'

For Family Courts

Recent Supreme Court Decisions Seen Beneficial

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's 2,600 juvenile courts, thrown into turmoil by recent Supreme Court decisions, may eventually develop into more efficient, comprehensive "family" courts.

This hope was voiced by an expert in the field, the Rev. Robert F. Drinan, dean of Boston College Law School, at a two-day institute here on "The Changing World of Juvenile Law" sponsored by an American Bar Association (ABA) group.

The speeches and questions by professional people from 30 states, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Canada revealed that juvenile courts, long the neglected step-children of the American judicial system, are up against a staggering complex of problems.

More Serious

The more serious include new attitudes toward the delinquent child, the need to afford him certain constitutional protections, a shortage of lawyers to represent him, lack of competent judges and a terrifying increase in juvenile crime.

The kind of family or domestic relations court envisioned by Drinan would treat a wide range of personal problems including divorce, separate maintenance, non-support, adoptions and family offenses. In the course of judging a divorce, the court would be obliged to protect the rights of the couple's children.

Drinan said the ABA's family law section, which arranged the institute, is working toward this goal. He is the immediate past president of the section.

Hawaii recently established a family court system. They also operate in New York and Rhode Island and in some city jurisdictions, notably Detroit and Milwaukee.

The Boston dean rested part of his hope on a model juvenile court law presented by Judge Eugene A. Burdick of the district court in Williston, N.D. The draft will be urged on all state legislatures if it is approved by the ABA's policy-making house of delegates at its annual meeting in Philadelphia in August.

"I hope it is the forerunner of a unified, integrated family court," Drinan said.

Bleak Picture

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark sketches a bleak picture of juvenile crime. Although adult crime probably has not increased in this decade, he said, youthful crime has increased more than 60 per cent. In 1966, adult crime was down 1 per cent and youth crime up 9 per cent.

Children between 11 and 17 commit 64 per cent of all car thefts and 50 per cent of the two other most frequent crimes against property—burglary and larceny. Minors commit half of all property crimes.

What kind of courts deal with these offenders? One fifth of the judges are not lawyers. In fact, one fifth have no college education at all. Half have no undergraduate degree. Three-fifths spend less than 25 per cent of their time on juvenile cases. Hearings last from 5 to 15 minutes. Eighty-three per cent of the judges have no access to any psychological or psychiatric help. One-third have no access to any type of case worker.

"What can we expect?" the attorney general asked. "Until we have the resources and until we have the commitment, we'll never get the job done.'

The Well Child

Thumbsucking is a recurring problem. One woman asks what can be done to get her 18-month-old granddaughter to stop sucking her thumb. A certain amount of thumbsucking is to be expected in the first year or two of life. Such deterents as spanking, scolding, tying the hands and painting the tumb with evil-tasting substances do more harm than good. A happy child who is well-loved, and knows it, will outgrow the habit before reaching school age. Meanwhile, the child's thumb won't dissolve and she can't swallow it so why not relax and enjoy her few remaining months of babyhood?

A different problem is presented by the mother who writes that her son, 11, still sucks his thumb. On the left side of his mouth, just below his lip, he had developed several warts. This mother wonders whether the warts are caused by thumbsucking and what to do to break the habit.

Since warts are caused by virus, they have no relationship to the thumbsucking. Thumbsucking at any age is caused by a feeling of insecurity. It is significant that this mother asked how she could stop her son's habit instead of how he could stop it. This leads me to assume that she has in general been overprotective of her son and has not allowed him to grow up. In itself the habit is harmless, but sooner or later this boy is going to have to start fending for himself and making his own decisions, having neglected to train him along this line, I believe this mother, with her child, should consult a child psychologist.

Q — My son, 3½, had a mild attack of scarlet fever. How does this disease start? What are the symptoms? Are there any serious complications?

A — Scarlet fever usually starts with a sore throat, followed by fever, vomiting and a generalized rash. The complications in the acute stage include rheumatic heart disease, kidney infection, arthritis, middle ear infection and pneumonia. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Doing the Right Thing

DECEIT WON'T MAKE FOR HAPPINESS

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter is planning to be married in the fall. She is divorced. Her fiance knows all about this, but his family does not. The boy's parents are strict Catholics. I think she should tell them about the divorce but she doesn't. What is the right thing to do?—Mrs. Dee.

Dear Mrs. Dee: No matter what the consequences may be—and they may be grave—the boy's parents must be told that your daughter is divorced. Believe me, they will hear it sooner or later through someone else, and that will be a far worse disaster than if they hear it from their son. Apparently he accepts the situation and although it may result in an estrangement between him and his family, there is only one course—complete honesty.

• • •

In Regard to Invitations

Dear Mrs. Post: If invitations are sent out for an affair, is it proper for a son or daughted to go in place of a parent who is unable to attend?

If you are giving an affair and you receive some regrets, is it in good tasts—a week before the affair — to send out more invitations?—Doubtful.

Dear "Doubtful:" It is proper for only one guest to substitute for another (even within a family) when permission is asked of, and granted by, the sender of the invitation. It is not in good tasts to send out a second set of invitations at a late date when you find you have extra space. Those receiving them would surely know they are "second choice."

Save Canary for Another Occasion

Dear Mrs. Post: My sister is to be married, and I want to get her something special for her wedding. She has always said that she would like a canary. Would this be an appropriate wedding gift?—Juanita.

Dear Juanita: No, I don't think a canary is an appropriate wedding gift. For one thing, a wedding gift should be something of permanent value and a canary can't last forever. Give her the canary as a housewarming present or a birthday gift, but not as a wedding present.

YWCA Aim: To 'Break the Barrier'

By AILEEN SNODDY

NEW YORK (NEA) — Who is the middle-class Negro? Where does he fit in the current jumbled skein of race relations? What has the moderate been doing all these years?

Trying to answer these questions with her words and actions is Mrs. Robert W. Claytor of Grand Rapids, Mich. Helen Claytor is several months into her three-year term as president of the YMCA National Board of the United States.

Her election is timed perfectly. So much so that it may appear a planned coincidence to those unaware of the internal changes taking place behind the famed Blue Triangle. However, her position is a logical step in the organization's goals that touch more than 2.5 million women "that their lives may be open to new understanding and deeper relationships."

Mrs. Claytor is a YWCA career woman. "It was," she said here recently, "one of the few job possibilities for an educated Negro when I graduated from the University of Minnesota.

Her other activities include the Michigan Welfare League and State Youth Commission, Kent County Planned Parenthood Council, Christian Social Relations Department, Episcopal and National Women's Advisory Committee on Poverty.

Her experiences bridge the years of opportunity and nonopportunity for her people "I realize," she commented, when asked about her three children," "that the things my older son, Roger Wilkins, does now were not possible for me to do when I came out of college."

Wilkins, son of her late husband, whose brother is Roy Wilkins of the NAACP, is director of Community Relations Justice. Her pride glows in her gentle face, framed by her soft, graying hair.

"Roger says that a Negro to make it today has to be born in the North or be especially strong or both.

"I had everything going for me."

Mrs. Claytor then explained that, except for two brief occasions—"those little dinky times"—when she lived in pocket ghettos in Kansas City and New York, hers has been an integrated life. Her father a self-educated lawyer, and her mother, who taught cooking on an Indian reservation in a Civil Service job, moved to Minniapolis from South Dakota so their three daughters could receive a good education.

Mrs. Robert Claytor

"My father had a tremendous drive for education and I was happy he was alive to see me become a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

"His passion for excellence keeps me straight when I am tempted to squeeze by with less effort than I should put into a job," she explained.

"My feeling always has been that, if I was prepared, there was some hope I could become part of the mainstream of life."

Certainly she has. The Negro doctor, lawyer and businessman represent, she said, "those of us who didn't settle for segregation. We had hope.

"Hope is what the ghetto people lack today.

"The middle-class Negro is coming along fast. But the mass of Negroes live in a morass of hopelessness. Their income is the same as during the Depression. They live in a perpetual state of depression.

"The tragedy is," she continued, "that no one listened through the years when we tried to point this out."

Continuing outbreaks of violence, and even self-destruction, Mrs. Claytor lays at the altar of hopelessness.

"The response we are geting from youth now is that there is no hope, no chance to be trained, bo jobs, no future. They feel there is nothing to lose if they riot."

Unfortunately, sympathetic middle-class Negroes are almost as resented as Whitey, she said. "Those in the ghettos resent Negro doctors and lawyers offering advice and help unless they live there. They say they want to do it themselves."

Mrs. Claytor's younger children by her second marriage to a Grand Rapids doctor, she admitted, "are more militant and less patient than I but they indicate they want to work in a responsible way. My daughter says she wants to do something of social significance and my son says he wants to be a lawyer, working for social justice."

This, then is a sketch of a middle-class Negro who this month and through the summer will be urging YWCA groups in the United States to take part in a deep dialogue program to "Break the Barriers.

Vacuum Screens

Screens should be vacuum-cleaned or scrubbed inside and out with a stiff brush. Occasionally turn the hose on them. Use a hand vacuum to clean the tracks on roll-up screens; then wax the tracks. Paint wood-framed screens every two years. Paint screens with a rag or roller; keep the screen flat so the paint won't run while drying.

Vacuum Screens

Screens should be vacuum-cleaned or scrubbed inside and out with a stiff brush. Occasionally turn the hose on them. Use a hand vacuum to clean the tracks on roll-up screens; then wax the tracks. Paint wood-framed screens every two years. Paint screens with a rag or roller; keep the screen flat so the paint won't run while drying.

For Fishermen

Tuck a box of baking soda into hubby's tackle box before he sets off for fishing. Dry soda is a good scratchless scourer for shining lures. Fishhooks won't rust when anchored in a cork and stored in a jarful of dry soda. The bait bucket won't smell fishy if it's washed with a soda solution.

Before walking through tall grass to reach the lake or stream, dust your legs well with baking soda to ward off chiggers.

Dredge Chicken Easily

Dredge chicken by shaking in a paper bag with flour and seasonings.

Sport Club Kickers Win League Pennant

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

Final Standing

	W	T	L	Pts.
Kingston	14	3	3	31
Bavarian	11	7	2	29
White plains	12	4	4	28

Kingston Sport Club Kickers were forced to play the last 75 minutes with only 10 men in the lineup, but the severe handicap did not deter them from winning their first League Division title in the German-American Soccer Association Sunday at Poughkeepsie.

With the victory went automatic promotion to the stronger Premier Division for the 1968-69 season.

Bavarian Second

Bavarians battled Yonkers to a 3-3 tie at Flushing and claimed second place in the standings. They will meet Shamrocks in a playoff for the second spot in the Premier circuit.

Fourteenth Victory

Kingston completed its season with 31 points on 14 wins, 3 ties and 3 losses. Bavarian had 29 points and White plains 28.

Henry Inger, the Kicker's starting left halfback, was banished from the game at the 15-minute mark for what the referee described as "excessive roughness." This left the locals with only 10 players and 75 minutes to go.

The Blue-Whites clung to their lead for 30 minutes before Ventriglia hit on the first of two goals at 75 minutes. Reiner Schwebel boomed an attempt from 5 yards out on the left wing. It caromed off the post and Ventriglia, 10 yards out, boomed in the followup for a 2-2 tie.

The winning goal which brought the Kickers a League Division title after only three years in the circuit was a thing of beauty — and a bit of luck. Pobbi-Asare closed in on the Poughkeepsie goalie from the right wing with a steaming shot. The goalie took it in the stomach for a save but Ventriglia followed up the rebound and skirted around the goalie for the clincher.

Pobbi-Asare appeared to have scored a fourth Kingston goal in the last minute but the referee declared it void.

Timo Liekoski had four saves for the Kickers. Kingston led 14-9 in the free kick department and had five corner kicks to two for Poughkeepsie.

Overall, Kingston had 11 shots at the goal. Poughkeepsie nine.

Kingston lineup:

Goal—Liekoski; LFB—Weber; CFB—Soddemann; RFB—Newmerzhycky, LHB—Inger; CHB—Biggers; RHB—Lotze; OL—Grasmeier IL—Ventriglia; IR—Schwebel; CR—Pobbi-Asare. Kingston subs—Selimotic, Reinhardt.

Volkswagen's electronic brain. It's smarter than a carburetor.

Alas, the carburetor.

Decent and hard-working though it was, it just couldn't think.

So every now and then it would do thoughtless little things. Like get everything dirty. Waste gas. Shamelessly pollute the air.

Our new computer would never behave that way.

In the first place, it's too educated to get everything dirty. (It's always properly informed about changes in the speed, engine temperature and load. So it's always properly informed about what's improper.)

And it's too shrewd to waste gas.

(Since it knows everything precisely, it can decide everything precisely. And its decisions about how much fuel you need are so precise that you actually wind up burning less gas.)

Finally, it's too prudent to shamelessly pollute the air.

(No unburnt fuel around the engine means no unburnt fuel to evaporate in the atmosphere. Even the pollution from exhaust fumes is greatly reduced.)

Just think. When you get a carburetor-less VW Squareback or VW Fastback, you not only become the proud possessor of a sound body. But of a brilliant mind.

Sport Club Kickers Win League Pennant

Final Standing

	W	T	L	Pts.
Kingston	14	3	3	31
Bavarian	11	7	2	29
White plains	12	4	4	28

Kingston Sport Club Kickers were forced to play the last 75 minutes with only 10 men in the lineup, but the severe handicap did not deter them from winning their first League Division title in the German-American Soccer Association Sunday at Poughkeepsie.

With the victory went automatic promotion to the stronger Premier Division for the 1968-69 season.

Bavarian Second

Bavarians battled Yonkers to a 3-3 tie at Flushing and claimed second place in the standings. They will meet Shamrocks in a playoff for the second spot in the Premier circuit.

Fourteenth Victory

Kingston completed its season with 31 points on 14 wins, 3 ties and 3 losses. Bavarian had 29 points and White plains 28.

Henry Inger, the Kicker's starting left halfback, was banished from the game at the 15-minute mark for what the referee described as "excessive roughness." This left the locals with only 10 players and 75 minutes to go.

Kingston scored first at 12 minutes when Walt Grasmeir took a back pass from Pobbi-Asare and drilled one in to the net. Goals by the Glass brothers —Gene at 16 minutes and Pete at 45 minutes—gave Poughkeepsie a 2-1 lead at the half.

The Blue-Whites clung to their lead for 30 minutes before Ventriglia hit on the first of two goals at 75 minutes. Reiner Schwebel boomed an attempt from 5 yards out on the left wing. It caromed off the post and Ventriglia, 10 yards out, boomed in the followup for a 2-2 tie.

The winning goal which brought the Kickers a League Division title after only three years in the circuit was a thing of beauty — and a bit of luck. Pobbi-Asare closed in on the Poughkeepsie goalie from the right wing with a steaming shot. The goalie took it in the stomach for a save but Ventriglia followed up the rebound and skirted around the goalie for the clincher.

Pobbi-Asare appeared to have scored a fourth Kingston goal in the last minute but the referee declared it void.

Timo Liekoski had four saves for the Kickers. Kingston led 14-9 in the free kick department and had five corner kicks to two for Poughkeepsie.

Overall, Kingston had 11 shots at the goal. Poughkeepsie nine.

Kingston lineup:

Goal—Liekoski; LFB—Weber; CFB—Soddemann; RFB—Newmerzhycky, LHB—Inger; CHB—Biggers; RHB—Lotze; OL—Grasmeier IL—Ventriglia; IR—Schwebel; CR—Pobbi-Asare. Kingston subs—Selimotic, Reinhardt.

Drysdale Hurls 4th "O" in Row

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Don Drysdale and Ernie Banks don't break up the clubhouse furniture, snarl at reporters or chase butterflies in the outfield when the baseball fates go against them.

All they worry about is giving 100 per cent in every game and maybe that's why they're growing old gracefully in a sport usually referred to as a young man's game. Both still are playing for the teams with which they started in the 1950s —the Los Angeles Dodgers and Chicago Cubs respectively—and implanting their names firmly in the record book.

The 32-year-old Drysdale tied the National League record of four consecutive shutouts when he beat the Houston Astros 5-0 Sunday while the 37-year-old Banks became the 11th player in major league history to hit 450 lifetime homers in a 4-2 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

Drysdale pitched a six-hitter, struck out six and walked two in pitching his fourth straight shutout, fifth of the season. He now shares the NL mark of four consecutive shutouts with Mordecia Brown, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Ed Reulbach, Bill Lee and Sal Maglie and is one shy of the major league mark set by Doc White of the 1904 Chicago White Sox. Drysdale's 38 consecutive scoreless innings are 18 short of the major league record held by Walter Johnson.

Drysdale also singled home the Dodgers' first run in the third inning and had another single during a two-run ninth-inning rally.

Banks hit two homers Sunday, the first two-run drive which gave the Cubs a 3-0 lead in the first inning and the second a solo shot in the fourth. Both were off Mike McCormick, a 22-game winner last season who suffered his fifth setback against four victories this year.

Willie Mays, Mickey Mantle, Eddie Mathews and Hank Aaron are the other active players who have hit 450 homers during their careers. The others who reached that total were Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams, Mel Ott, Lou Gehrig and Stan Musial.

The Philadelphia Phillies whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 9-3, the Atlanta Braves nipped the New York Mets 2-1 and the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds played an 8-8 tie in other National League games.

Richie Allen drove in four runs with a three-run 460-foot homer and a single as the Phillies dealt the Cardinals their ninth loss in 11 games. Woody Fryman went the distance for the Phillies, although tagged for 10 hits, to win his sixth game of the season. Johnny Callison and Tony Taylor had three hits each for the Phillies.

Rhubarbs Take Over

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

American League president Joe Cronin might be wise to make a photo of Tony Conigliaro standard equipment in the clubhouse of every team circuit.

It could serve as a reminder of how one careless or otherwise errant pitch can destroy the career of a fine young athlete and perhaps affect the outcome of a pennant race. Also, that an innocent bystander can be hurt when baseball degenerates into baserawl.

The 23-year-old Conigliaro's blossoming career apparently has been ended as a result of a pitch by Jack Hamilton of the California Angels which struck the Boston Red Sox outfielder on the head last Aug. 18. No one has accused Hamilton of any intent in the incident but accusations and fists were flying all over the field in Oakland, Calif., Sunday when the Detroit Tigers and Athletics almost staged a riot.

The direct cause of the flareup was a pitch by Oakland's Jack Aker which hit Jim Northrup on the head on the first pitch after Dick Tracewski's sacrifice fly tied the score at 6-6 in the sixth inning. A secondary cause was that Al Kaline of the Tigers suffered a hairline fracture of the right arm Saturday night when hit by a pitch thrown by Lew Krausse of the Athletics.

Northrup charged Aker and the two players exchanged punches as players from both teams raced onto the field. Northrup, Krausse and John Odom were ejected by chief umpire Cal Drummond. Drummond called Northrup the aggressor but Manager Mayo Smith of the Tigers said, "Aker is the one who brought it all on to start with."

"I was not trying to hit Northrup," said Aker. "I was just trying to brush him back and move him off the plate.

"Well, if that's what Aker said, I guess that's what happened," said Smith. "He has all the answers."

The Athletics won the game 7-6 and cut the Tigers' American League lead to one game when Rene Lachemann singled home pinch-runner Jim Hunter in the 10th inning. Paul Lindblad, who shut out the Tigers for the last three innings received credit for his third victory without a loss.

The Baltimore Orioles beat the Washington Senators 8-7, the Minnesota Twins nipped the Red Sox 5-4, the Cleveland Indians defeated the California Angels 5-2 and the New York Yankees swept the Chicago White Sox 5-1 and 7-6 in other American League games.

A two-run homer by Andy Etchebarren and a two-run double by Curt Motton helped to offset a three-run homer by Frank Howard and give Gene Brabender his fourth victory for the Orioles. Howard's homer was his 15th of the month—three fewer than the major league record for one month set by Rudy York of the Tigers in 1937.

Ninth-inning homers by Harmon Killebrew and Ted Uhlaender lifted the Twins to their victory after the Red Sox took an early 4-0 lead with the aid of a three-run homer by Ken Harrleson. Killebrew led off the ninth with a game-tying homer and Uhlaender's game-winning blow came with two out. Both were off relief pitcher Sparky Lyles.

The Hudson Valley Softball League was a chalk players dream Sunday afternoon, as the two league leaders, Poughkeepsie Red Whites and Green Haven Prison, deadlocked for the league's lead, both posted victories.

Green Haven came up with six runs in the first two innings to hand Stewart Air Force Base a 7-5 setback.

Ray's hurler, Richie Hoffman, the starter and loser, was touched for single tallies in both the first and second frames, but was bombed by Veronisi in the third to provide the margin of victory.

The Red Whites added three more in the fifth to knock Hoffman out of the box, with Bill Costello taking over.

Poughkeepsie hurler, Steve Barger, kept the Ray's hitters off balance, striking out 11 while walking two. He gave up a gopher ball to Kingston first sacker, Richie Conklin, in the fourth.

Green Haven, with Joe Proctor leading the way (perfect 4-4 day), opened the game with a five-run outburst on a trio of singles, a pair of errors and a run-scoring double. Willie Miranda's single netted two runs.

Stewart went out front, 2-0 in the top of the first. Green Haven's five runs wouldn't have been good enough for the win because SAFB came up with three in the third.

Drysdale Hurls 4th "O" in Row

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Don Drysdale and Ernie Banks don't break up the clubhouse furniture, snarl at reporters or chase butterflies in the outfield when the baseball fates go against them.

All they worry about is giving 100 per cent in every game and maybe that's why they're growing old gracefully in a sport usually referred to as a young man's game. Both still are playing for the teams with which they started in the 1950s—the Los Angeles Dodgers and Chicago Cubs respectively—and implanting their names firmly in the record book.

The 32-year-old Drysdale tied the National League record of four consecutive shutouts when he beat the Houston Astros 5-0 Sunday while the 37-year-old Banks became the 11th player in major league history to hit 450 lifetime homers in a 4-2 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

Drysdale pitched a six-hitter, struck out six and walked two in pitching his fourth straight shutout, fifth of the season. He now shares the NL mark of four consecutive shutouts with Mordecia Brown, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Ed Reulbach, Bill Lee and Sal Maglie and is one shy of the major league mark set by Doc White of the 1904 Chicago White Sox. Drysdale's 38 consecutive scoreless innings are 18 short of the major league record held by Walter Johnson.

Drysdale also singled home the Dodgers' first run in the third inning and had another single during a two-run ninth-inning rally.

Banks hit two homers Sunday, the first two-run drive which gave the Cubs a 3-0 lead in the first inning and the second a solo shot in the fourth. Both were off Mike McCormick, a 22-game winner last season who suffered his fifth setback against four victories this year.

Willie Mays, Mickey Mantle, Eddie Mathews and Hank Aaron are the other active players who have hit 450 homers during their careers. The others who reached that total were Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams, Mel Ott, Lou Gehrig and Stan Musial.

The Philadelphia Phillies whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 9-3, the Atlanta Braves nipped the New York Mets 2-1 and the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds played an 8-8 tie in other National League games.

Richie Allen drove in four runs with a three-run 460-foot homer and a single as the Phillies dealt the Cardinals their ninth loss in 11 games. Woody Fryman went the distance for the Phillies, although tagged for 10 hits, to win his sixth game of the season. Johnny Callison and Tony Taylor had three hits each for the Phillies.

Rhubarbs Take Over

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

American League president Joe Cronin might be wise to make a photo of Tony Conigliaro standard equipment in the clubhouse of every team circuit.

It could serve as a reminder of how one careless or otherwise errant pitch can destroy the career of a fine young athlete and perhaps affect the outcome of a pennant race. Also, that an innocent bystander can be hurt when baseball degenerates into baseball brawl.

The 23-year-old Conigliaro's blossoming career apparently has been ended as a result of a pitch by Jack Hamilton of the California Angels which struck the Boston Red Sox outfielder on the head last Aug. 18. No one has accused Hamilton of any intent in the incident but accusations and fists were flying all over the field in Oakland, Calif., Sunday when the Detroit Tigers and Athletics almost staged a riot.

The direct cause of the flareup was a pitch by Oakland's Jack Aker which hit Jim Northrup on the head on the first pitch after Dick Tracewski's sacrifice fly tied the score at 6-6 in the sixth inning. A secondary cause was that Al Kaline of the Tigers suffered a hairline fracture of the right arm Saturday night when hit by a pitch thrown by Lew Krausse of the Athletics.

Northrup charged Aker and the two players exchanged punches as players from both teams raced onto the field. Northrup, Krausse and John Odom were ejected by chief umpire Cal Drummond. Drummond called Northrup the aggressor but Manager Mayo Smith of the Tigers said, "Aker is the one who brought it all on to start with."

"I was not trying to hit Northrup," said Aker. "I was just trying to brush him back and move him off the plate.

"Well, if that's what Aker said, I guess that's what happened," said Smith. "He has all the answers."

The Athletics won the game 7-6 and cut the Tigers' American League lead to one game when Rene Lachemann singled home pinch-runner Jim Hunter in the 10th inning. Paul Lindblad, who shut out the Tigers for the last three innings received credit for his third victory without a loss.

The Baltimore Orioles beat the Washington Senators 8-7, the Minnesota Twins nipped the Red Sox 5-4, the Cleveland Indians defeated the California Angels 5-2 and the New York Yankees swept the Chicago White Sox 5-1 and 7-6 in other American League games.

A two-run homer by Andy Etchebarren and a two-run double by Curt Motton helped to offset a three-run homer by Frank Howard and give Gene Brabender his fourth victory for the Orioles. Howard's homer was his 15th of the month—three fewer than the major league record for one month set by Rudy York of the Tigers in 1937.

Ninth-inning homers by Harmon Killebrew and Ted Uhlaender lifted the Twins to their victory after the Red Sox took an early 4-0 lead with the aid of a three-run homer by Ken Harrleson. Killebrew led off the ninth with a game-tying homer and Uhlaender's game-winning blow came with two out. Both were off relief pitcher Sparky Lyles.

The Hudson Valley Softball League was a chalk players dream Sunday afternoon, as the two league leaders, Poughkeepsie Red Whites and Green Haven Prison, deadlocked for the league's lead, both posted victories.

The Red Whites, state amateur champs last year, pounded visiting Kingston entry, Ray's Chevrolet, 8-2, behind the three run homer of Skip Veronisi.

Green Haven came up with six runs in the first two innings to hand Stewart Air Force Base a 7-5 setback.

Ray's hurler, Richie Hoffman, the starter and loser, was touched for single tallies in both the first and second frames, but was bombed by Veronisi in the third to provide the margin of victory.

The Red Whites added three more in the fifth to knock Hoffman out of the box, with Bill Costello taking over.

Poughkeepsie hurler, Steve Barger, kept the Ray's hitters off balance, striking out 11 while walking two. He gave up a gopher ball to Kingston first sacker, Richie Conklin, in the fourth.

Green Haven, with Joe Proctor leading the way (perfect 4-4 day), opened the game with a five-run outburst on a trio of singles, a pair of errors and a run-scoring double. Willie Miranda's single netted two runs.

Stewart went out front, 2-0 in the top of the first. Green Haven's five runs wouldn't have been good enough for the win because SAFB came up with three in the third.

NFA, Warwick, Highland Cop Section "9" Track

Highland High School, which has a showdown dual track and field meet coming up with Onteora, Saturday afternoon captured the Section Nine Class C championship despite having its winning 880-relay team disqualified.

The rest of the section's class championships found Newburgh running away from the competition in Class A and Warwick surprising with a strong showing in Class B.

The Class C meet was held at New Paltz, the B at Middletown and the A at Tappan Zee. The tracks at New Paltz and Middletown were extremely fast while at Tappan Zee, the track was rated fast at the start, but became muddier—the times slower—as the day wore on.

Saturday's first two finishers in the track events, the top three in field events and the winning relay team in each class will square off Tuesday at Clarkstown. The numbers one and two finishers in each event at Clarkstown, plus the top relay team, all regardless of class, will go to the state meet June 8 at Port Jefferson, L.I.

There were several surprises, especially in Class C, where the Highlanders, not overly impressive in the UCAL meet, won by four points over runner-up New Paltz. Highland was led by double wins in the high and triple jumps by Lee Barrington. Lance Mann copped the long jump and John Crawford the 880 for Highland's victories. The relay team won but was KO'd because they used a taped baton.

Dana Otis of New Paltz posted a double, taking both hurdle events from Al (Peanuts) Mandeville of Ellenville, while Tom Murray of the Ellies who has gone 0:10.05 in the hundred, took that 0:10.2 plus the 220 for his double.

In Class B, Onteora, the UCAL victor, but outclassed by the bigger schools in the class, had one champ, Craig Hubbell, who posted the fastest time of the day, 10:05 in the two-mile.

The big events in this class were the 100, the two weight events and the high hurdles.

In the 100, Stan Hepburn of Monticello, who had a 0:09.9 lifetime mark and unable to do any better than 0:10.2 this year, stopped the clocks in 10 seconds flat. He has been unable to train the last month-and-a-half, and his time, the fastest again of the day, sets him up as the favorite in Tuesday's state meet qualifications.

Jose Guadalupe of Warwick broke his own section record in the shotput with a heave of 58-6, two-and-a-half feet better than his own previous mark. He also took the discus.

The other record came in the high hurdles with Darrell Chase of Port Jervis winning in record time of 0:15.1 nipping John Harlow of Monroe-Woodbury by a step. They finished exactly the same in the low hurdles.

In Class A, Kingston's lone victor was Gary Boice in the mile, with a slow 4:32 over the sloppy track. KHS, without three athletes, finished sixth with 11 as NFA piled up 49 to win. Missing was Ted Wood, high jumper, out with bronchitis. Allan Burns, high jump and hurdler, out with a bad knee and Fred Kachura, suffering from a stomach disorder.

Forced to juggle to compensate for the loss of the trio, KHS was upset in both relay events, events in which they were favored.

Hawk Golfers Close With 7-7

A final match loss to Quinnipiac College by a 4-3 score evened the State University College at New Paltz's golf record for dual meets at 7-7.

The season, however, was brighter than the .500 record shows as the Hawks finished higher than ever in the SUNYAC tournament, taking second place.

The loss to Quinnipiac, coming on the road, came on an exera hole bogey by the Hawks in the final head-to-head match.

Mostransky wound up with an average of 81.66 strokes per match with Berry second at 83.08 and Kevin Mealia third at 83.81.

Mostransky also picked up the most birdies, 35, to lead Berry, runner-up again, by 15.

In all, the Hawks piled up 67½ points while their opponents garnered 74½, but the season record was even-steven.

Berry and Mostransky are juniors while Mealia is a senior junior, who came on strong at the end, taking over the number three spot, was Dave Grant. The trio of third-year players wil compete in next fall's ECAC championships.

Coach Doug Sheppard was pleased with the season overall, but not overly excited about it. With the threesome back, he is looking forward to a better season in 1969.

Lonergan-Roberts Cop Doubles

"They played like a tennis machine. Nobody could stand up to them," said Kingston High tennis coach John Hunter of his ace doubles duo, Dave Roberts and Steve Lonergan. Roberts and Lonergan powered their way to their second straight Section Nine championship at West Point Saturday.

The previously unbeaten Middletown frosh tandem of Keith Kaback and Sam Markowitz fell to the Maroon stars, 6-2, 6-0, in the finals. Jim Boyd and Bill Zech, Kingston's singles competitors, each won three tough matches before they fell to Neil Novesky of Middletown and Dick Schilds of Nyack in the semi-finals.

Novesky triumphed over Schilds, 7-5 and 6-2, to become Middletown's first Section Nine singles winner ever.

The DUSO league dominated the field filling five of the six places for the state championships in Schenectady June 7. Roberts, Lonergan, Kaback, Markowitz, Novesky and Schilds will make the two day trip.

Tied for fourth place at 271 were Gay Brewer, Miller Barber and Bob McAllister. Brewer fired a 69 Sunday while Barber had a 67 and McAllister a 68.

NFA, Warwick, Highland Cop Section "9" Track

Highland High School, which has a showdown dual track and field meet coming up with Onteora, Saturday afternoon captured the Section Nine Class C championship despite having its winning 880-relay team disqualified.

The rest of the section's class championships found Newburgh running away from the competition in Class A and Warwick surprising with a strong showing in Class B.

The Class C meet was held at New Paltz, the B at Middletown and the A at Tappan Zee. The tracks at New Paltz and Middletown were extremely fast while at Tappan Zee, the track was rated fast at the start, but became muddier—the times slower—as the day wore on.

Saturday's first two finishers in the track events, the top three in field events and the winning relay team in each class will square off Tuesday at Clarkstown. The numbers one and two finishers in each event at Clarkstown, plus the top relay team, all regardless of class, will go to the state meet June 8 at Port Jefferson, L.I.

There were several surprises, especially in Class C, where the Highlanders, not overly impressive in the UCAL meet, won by four points over runner-up New Paltz. Highland was led by double wins in the high and triple jumps by Lee Barrington. Lance Mann copped the long jump and John Crawford the 880 for Highland's victories. The relay team won but was KO'd because they used a taped baton.

Dana Otis of New Paltz posted a double, taking both hurdle events from Al (Peanuts) Mandeville of Ellenville, while Tom Murray of the Ellies who has gone 0:10.05 in the hundred, took that 0:10.2 plus the 220 for his double.

In Class B, Onteora, the UCAL victor, but outclassed by the bigger schools in the class, had one champ, Craig Hubbell, who posted the fastest time of the day, 10:05 in the two-mile.

The big events in this class were the 100, the two weight events and the high hurdles.

In the 100, Stan Hepburn of Monticello, who had a 0:09.9 lifetime mark and unable to do any better than 0:10.2 this year, stopped the clocks in 10 seconds flat. He has been unable to train the last month-and-a-half, and his time, the fastest again of the day, sets him up as the favorite in Tuesday's state meet qualifications.

Jose Guadalupe of Warwick broke his own section record in the shotput with a heave of 58-6, two-and-a-half feet better than his own previous mark. He also took the discus.

The other record came in the high hurdles with Darrell Chase of Port Jervis winning in record time of 0:15.1 nipping John Harlow of Monroe-Woodbury by a step. They finished exactly the same in the low hurdles.

In Class A, Kingston's lone victor was Gary Boice in the mile, with a slow 4:32 over the sloppy track. KHS, without three athletes, finished sixth with 11 as NFA piled up 49 to win. Missing was Ted Wood, high jumper, out with bronchitis, Allan Burns, high jump and hurdler, out with a bad knee and Fred Kachura, suffering from a stomach disorder.

Forced to juggle to compensate for the loss of the trio, KHS was upset in both relay events, events in which they were favored.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Husky Bob Lunn, a sophomore on the golf tour, turned back the old pros Sunday with a 12-foot eagle putt on the 16th green to win the $100,000 Memphis Open by one stroke with a 12-under par 268.

Lunn, a strapping 23-year-old Californian who bills himself as the "Tomato Juice Kid," took the top prize of $20,000 with a final round 67, three under par.

Monty Kaser birdied the 18th hole to take second place with a final round 66 and a tournament total of 269, and third round leader Lou Graham ended in a tie for third place with rookie B. R. McLendon at 270.

McLendon, 22, who joined the tour only three weeks ago, shot a 69 Sunday to finish the tournament 10-under par. He and Graham, who had a 71 Sunday, won $6,500 each.

Tied for fourth place at 271 were Gay Brewer, Miller Barber and Bob McAllister. Brewer fired a 69 Sunday while Barber had a 67 and McAllister a 68.

Columbia Restoration Opens Doors to Public

Four years after the restoration was started on the 200 year-old Van Alen House on Route 9-H, Kinderhook, the building is prepared to receive the public. It will be open 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. daily except Monday, now until Oct. 1.

Construction on the interior of the house is completed. Suitable furnishing is gradually being accumulated, the object being to present the sort of Dutch farm home of the early 18th Century that prosperous people could have had.

The property consists of 30 acres of land surrounding the house which will be restored to 18th century appearance. Evidence of earlier buildings than the present one built in 1737 has been found which adds greatly to the significance of the present restoration.

Interest in this unique restoration of the past in this area has been so great that last summer on the two Sunday afternoons the house was open to the public more than 2,000 people came to see it.

This project has been sponsored by the Columbia County Historical Society which now maintains two museums: the House of History, its headquarters on Broad Street in the Village of Kinderhook, a fine early 19th Century home, and the Van Alen House.

Columbia Restoration Opens Doors to Public

Four years after the restoration was started on the 200 year-old Van Alen House on Route 9-H Kinderhook, the building is prepared to receive the public. It will be open 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. daily except Monday, now until Oct. 1.

Construction on the interior of the house is completed. Suitable furnishing is gradually being accumulated, the object being to present the sort of Dutch farm home of the early 18th Century that prosperous people could have had.

The property consists of 30 acres of land surrounding the house which will be restored to 18th century appearance. Evidence of earlier buildings than the present one built in 1737 has been found which adds greatly to the significance of the present restoration.

Interest in this unique restoration of the past in this area has been so great that last summer on the two Sunday afternoons the house was open to the public more than 2,000 people came to see it.

This project has been sponsored by the Columbia County Historical Society which now maintains two museums: the House of History, its headquarters on Broad Street in the Village of Kinderhook, a fine early 19th Century home, and the Van Alen House.

Dear Abby

Yoo-hoos... and Walks In

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

[© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about people who just walk into your house because the door isn't locked? Many times I will tell my grocer to set my groceries inside my door instead of on the back porch, and I leave the door unlocked for him.

Well, this neighbor lady tried my back door, and, finding it unlocked, she walked right in. She yoo-hooed and nobody answered because my husband was in the shower. He thought he heard someone come in, and, thinking it was me, he walked out. She said she heard the shower running, and, thinking it was me, she walked in. They met in the hall.

Now my husband can't face her and wants to move. We have lived in this house for 36 years and I think he's silly. What do you suggest?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: A towel and another "yoo-hoo" at the right place and the right time would have saved the day. Stay where you are; and tell your blushing hubby he's not as fascinating as he may think.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound like a silly problem to you but it is serious to me. My bones crack. Honestly, when I'm sitting in one place for a while and then start walking, my knee cracks. It doesn't hurt, but it is very embarrassing.

When I eat, sometimes my jaw snaps. If you are laughing at me I can't blame you, Abby, but I sure wish you would tell me if there is anything I can do about my problem.

"CRACKY"

DEAR CRACKY: Grin and bear it. The "problem" is grossly exaggerated only because it's your own. How much attention would you give to the "cracking" of someone else's knee? Or the snapping of his jaw? Not much, I'll bet.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have preschool children and a large home to care for, but I schedule my time so that everything gets done. When the children nap, I read, write letters, and relax alone, which I enjoy.

At that precise time, in variably a certain neighbor barges in on me with her children. She helps herself to refreshments, then settles down for an endless outpouring of gossip, unasked-for advice and a monologue of opinions on various subjects. She is a terrible bore.

I would pretend not to be home, but she can see my car in the garage. At first, I found her entertaining, but now she comes so often, I've taken a dislike to her. Please tell me what to do, but don't use my name or location. She has a vicious tongue and would make a better friend than an enemy.

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: People who open their doors to bores and tolerate their company day after day have only themselves to blame. By your failure to discourage her, you've encouraged her. If you had to decide between having this rude, vicious, gossipy pest for a friend or an enemy, I think you made an unwise choice.

* * *

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 697000, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ABBY'S BOOKLET, "HOW TO HAVE A LOVELY WEDDING," SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL., 90069.

Bridge

Proper Force, But Minimum

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Here is a hand I watched in a rubber bridge game that illustrates a common error of both rubber bridge and duplicate players."

Jim: "Let's see if I can spot it. Looking at all the cards I can see how South might have made the hand by a swindle play. He would draw trumps, cash the diamonds and proceed to lead ace and a small club. If East failed to drop his jack of clubs under the ace or if West failed to rise with the queen in order to catch East's jack with what is sometimes called the "crocodile coup," East would be end played and South would bring home his impossible slam."

Oswald. "No. South played ace-king and a small club so that the swindle failed to materialize. The point I want to stress is South's misbidding."

Jim: "You mean that South hung his partner for giving a positive response to the opening two bid?"

Oswald: "Exactly! And there was no way to convince South that he hadn't bid his hand perfectly. South pointed out that if his partner had responded two no-trump and bid four spades next, South would have passed. But he said that North should have had more than one king for his positive response."

Jim: "Don't suppose you were able to convince South that he had misbid the hand?"

Oswald: "No chance. I was appealed to and tried to explain to South that he had made a proper, but minimum, forcing two bid and had followed with a slam try and that when North had refused to accept the slam try, South should have been through bidding."

Jim: "Don't suppose South will ever be convinced. I can just see him pointing out that he had a two bid, his partner had made a positive response and the slam had to be bid."

When I eat, sometimes my jaw snaps. If you are laughing at me I can't blame you, Abby, but I sure wish you would tell me if there is anything I can do about my problem.

"CRACKY"

DEAR CRACKY: Grin and bear it. The "problem" is grossly exaggerated only because it's your own. How much attention would you give to the "cracking" of someone else's knee? Or the snapping of his jaw? Not much, I'll bet.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have preschool children and a large home to care for, but I schedule my time so that everything gets done. When the children nap, I read, write letters, and relax alone, which I enjoy.

At that precise time, in variably a certain neighbor barges in on me with her children. She helps herself to refreshments, then settles down for an endless outpouring of gossip, unasked-for advice and a monologue of opinions on various subjects. She is a terrible bore.

I would pretend not to be home, but she can see my car in the garage. At first, I found her entertaining, but now she comes so often, I've taken a dislike to her. Please tell me what to do, but don't use my name or location. She has a vicious tongue and would make a better friend than an enemy.

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: People who open their doors to bores and tolerate their company day after day have only themselves to blame. By your failure to discourage her, you've encouraged her. If you had to decide between having this rude, vicious, gossipy pest for a friend or an enemy, I think you made an unwise choice.

* * *

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 697000, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ABBY'S BOOKLET, "HOW TO HAVE A LOVELY WEDDING," SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL., 90069.

Bridge

Proper Force, But Minimum

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Here is a hand I watched in a rubber bridge game that illustrates a common error of both rubber bridge and duplicate players."

Jim: "Let's see if I can spot it. Looking at all the cards I can see how South might have made the hand by a swindle play. He would draw trumps, cash the diamonds and proceed to lead ace and a small club. If East failed to drop his jack of clubs under the ace or if West failed to rise with the queen in order to catch East's jack with what is sometimes called the "crocodile coup," East would be end played and South would bring home his impossible slam."

Oswald. "No. South played ace-king and a small club so that the swindle failed to materialize. The point I want to stress is South's misbidding."

Jim: "You mean that South hung his partner for giving a positive response to the opening two bid?"

Oswald: "Exactly! And there was no way to convince South that he hadn't bid his hand perfectly. South pointed out that if his partner had responded two no-trump and bid four spades next, South would have passed. But he said that North should have had more than one king for his positive response."

Jim: "Don't suppose you were able to convince South that he had misbid the hand?"

Oswald: "No chance. I was appealed to and tried to explain to South that he had made a proper, but minimum, forcing two bid and had followed with a slam try and that when North had refused to accept the slam try, South should have been through bidding."

Jim: "Don't suppose South will ever be convinced. I can just see him pointing out that he had a two bid, his partner had made a positive response and the slam had to be bid."

Some Shows Will Be Missed

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you remember—

When Faye Emerson's low necklines caused much discussion?

When Arthur Godfrey, wearing earphones and sitting at a desk on stage, conducted "Talent Scouts" like a booker for club dates?

When Jerry Lester and a big blonde named Dagmar kept the audiences awake and laughing into the small hours?

If you do, you are probably in that group of citizens that television calls "older," and you also probably remember when summer reruns came during a period of only about 13 weeks and were presented with a bit of a flourish as "The Best of Groucho" or "The Best of Dragnet."

No Bones About Persons

Today none of the networks makes any bones about reruns, and they occupy four or five months of the year.

Only in the cases of the special programs are any attempts made these days to dress up the rebroadcasts. Reruns of specials are called, by all three networks, "encore showings," suggesting that they have been brought back by popular demand.

With reruns in full bloom, the public is getting a last chance to see some shows that will quietly depart from the networks in September. Somehow, after they have been canceled, they sometimes pack a little more charm. Some shows, like "Cowboy in Africa" will disappear without more than a ripple, but others will be missed.

This viewer, while hardly among the faithful fans, will miss "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," partly for its interesting special effects and trick photography, but more for its ingenious assortment of monsters that, week after week, placed the submarine and its crew in deadly peril. My favorites were the scary ones that looked like outsize boiled lobsters or overgrown bunches of lettuce.

Lovable, Amusing

I shall also miss the robot of "Lost in Space," which over two seasons developed a lovable personality and in one episode was involved in a romance of sorts with a lady computer.

"Tarzan," if watched in the proper mood and not tackled too often, has also been a frequent source of amusement.

All of these, of course, were potboilers and primarily designed to attract the young audiences, but often in their earnest ways they were funnier than the most conscientous comedy shows.

Quick Quiz

Worst part about the late-late movie is that the frau, who's seen 'em all, tells us the plot during the commercials.

Some Shows Will Be Missed

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you remember—

When Faye Emerson's low necklines caused much discussion?

When Arthur Godfrey, wearing earphones and sitting at a desk on stage, conducted "Talent Scouts" like a booker for club dates?

When Jerry Lester and a big blonde named Dagmar kept the audiences awake and laughing into the small hours?

If you do, you are probably in that group of citizens that television calls "older," and you also probably remember when summer reruns came during a period of only about 13 weeks and were presented with a bit of a flourish as "The Best of Groucho" or "The Best of Dragnet."

No Bones About Persons

Today none of the networks makes any bones about reruns, and they occupy four or five months of the year.

Only in the cases of the special programs are any attempts made these days to dress up the rebroadcasts. Reruns of specials are called, by all three networks, "encore showings," suggesting that they have been brought back by popular demand.

With reruns in full bloom, the public is getting a last chance to see some shows that will quietly depart from the networks in September. Somehow, after they have been canceled, they sometimes pack a little more charm. Some shows, like "Cowboy in Africa" will disappear without more than a ripple, but others will be missed.

This viewer, while hardly among the faithful fans, will miss "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," partly for its interesting special effects and trick photography, but more for its ingenious assortment of monsters that, week after week, placed the submarine and its crew in deadly peril. My favorites were the scary ones that looked like outsize boiled lobsters or overgrown bunches of lettuce.

Lovable, Amusing

I shall also miss the robot of "Lost in Space," which over two seasons developed a lovable personality and in one episode was involved in a romance of sorts with a lady computer.

"Tarzan," if watched in the proper mood and not tackled too often, has also been a frequent source of amusement.

All of these, of course, were potboilers and primarily designed to attract the young audiences, but often in their earnest ways they were funnier than the most conscientous comedy shows.

The Crimmins Case In Hands of Jury

NEW YORK (UPI)— A jury of 12 married men today begins deliberating the fate of Mrs. Alice Crimmins, accused of strangling her four-year- old daughter at the height of a custody battle with her then estranged husband.

The jury will be charged by Queens Supreme Court Justice Peter T. Farrell. The charge is expected to consume about 90 minutes, after which the jurors will begin their deliberations.

Mrs. Crimmins, 28, an attractive, red-haired former cocktail waitress, is accused of killing her daughter, Alice Marie, who was found dead a few hours after her mother reported her as missing on July 14, 1965.

Mrs. Crimmins' five-year- old son Edmund Jr., also missing at the time, was found dead several days later. It was impossible to determine cause of the boy's death and no charges were filed.

At the time, Mrs. Crimmins was estranged from her husband, Edmund, 32, an airline mechanic. They since have reconciled.

The prosecution case rests largely on the testimony of two witnesses, Sophie Earomirski, a former Crimmins neighbor, and Joseph Rorech, the father of seven, who was a suitor of the defendant at the time of the childrens' deaths.

Mrs. Earomirski testified she saw Mrs. Crimmins and an unidentified man leave her apartment early on the morning of July 14, 1965. She said the couple was accompanied by a child and the man carried a bundle which he tossed into the back seat of the car.

The witness said she was sitting in her window smoking a cigarette and that the man referred to the bundle as "her."

Rorech said Mrs. Crimmins broke down and told him she had killed her daughter. Mrs. Crimmins denied the testimony of both witnesses in emotional courtroom outbursts.

During her testimony, Mrs. Crimmins admitted she had been intimate with other men during the period of her estrangement, and defense counsel Harold C. Harrison told the jury last Friday the state's case was nothing but "smoke and dirt."

Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony Lombardino said in his closing statement the state had "clearly proved that Alice Crimmins is guilty."

Nude Body Is Found In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Police continued their search for clues today in the shooting death of an 18-year-old woman whose nude body was found Sunday in her apartment on this city's east-side.

Police said the body of Miss Patricia Williams, alias Francine Morgan and Annette Lawson, was found on the living room floor of her apartment. They said she had been shot in the head sometime Saturday night.

The body was discovered by two men who said they were acquainted with the woman, police said. They were not held.

Police Lt. Leo J. Donovan said neighbors told police the woman had numerous male visitors, and police records showed Miss Williams was arrested twice in the last year on prostitution charges.

"So far, we have uncovered no leads that would assist us in the investigation," Donovan said.

He said the young woman was shot in the temple and the bullet lodged in her brain.

Miss Williams lived at 90 Dodge St.

SCLU: More Demonstrations

By RICHARD LERNER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Members of the Poor People's March on Washington were under orders today to step up their demonstrations on behalf of more government help for the needy.

One of the likely early targets as the campaign picks up pace this week is the office of Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman, from whom the marchers already have won a commitment for more surplus food distribution.

The Rev. James Bevel, a key official of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said Sunday that the campaigners "just may sit in (on Freeman) until we persuade him to go with us to Congress and demand their legislation of a policy to close the gap between surplus and starvation in this country."

Bevel said at a Sunday prayer meeting at Resurrection City, USA, "We want to get the whole camp mobilized behind our food drive."

The campaign leadership also pledged Sunday to follow members of Congress home if they fail to meet demands before adjournment.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, head of SCLC, said he would send demonstrators to the political conventions in Chicago and Miami Beach, as well as into certain legislators' home districts, if his goals were not satisfied.

He said he could not imagine that Congress would be "so insensitive to the needs of the people" that it would adjourn without acting on the food, jobs and income demands of his campaign. "But if it does adjourn, of course, we will go wherever the congressman goes and we will take our case of poverty with us," he said.

Abernathy also said on a television interview (Issues and Answers--ABC) that the SCLC, which he heads, might break tradition and endorse a presidential candidate "if we can find one that will come forth with a real program to deal with poverty in this richest nation in the history of mankind."

Can you afford to keep a Volkswagen in gas?
You get 23.5 miles a gallon with the VW automatic transmission.* And 34.8 miles a gallon with the Renault 10 automatic transmission.* 48% better gas mileage is only one reason Road Test magazine picked the Renault 10 over the VW again this year as "most for the money" of the top 10 economy imports. We'll give you a free copy of Road Test's 68-page report when you come in for a road test of your own.
